

French Police Press Drive on Terrorists

New Wave Of Killings, Bombings

PARIS (AP)— French police made a nationwide sweep against suspected Algerian and French terrorists today as killings and bombings increased after the collapse of hopes for immediate negotiations to end the Algerian rebellion.

Paris police hunted an Algerian execution squad that carried the hit-and-run war between rival rebel factions into a suburban hospital yesterday, killing 2 persons and wounding 12.

In Algiers the U.S. consulate was bombed after it closed for the day and an attempt was made to burn the American Cultural Center. Both attacks were attributed to French rightists retaliating for U.S. moves to get peace talks started between the French and the Algerian rebels.

Extremists Questioned

Police rounded up known French extremists in Paris and the French provinces also for questioning. The police said no well known persons were picked up, and it was not immediately known if any of those questioned were detained.

Negotiations between the rebels and the French were to have started today in Evian-les-Bains. But the chief rebel group—the National Liberation Front (FLN)—refused to meet after the French announced they would hold simultaneous negotiations with a rival rebel group, the National Liberation Movement (MNA). The French rejected the FLN demand that it be designated chief spokesman for the Algerians Nationalists.

There appeared to be little chance of a breakthrough.

South Africa Hit For Practices in Southwest Area

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— The U.N. General Assembly today adopted a sharply-worded resolution demanding that the South African Government immediately end its "tyrannical policies and practices" in Southwest Africa.

The 99-nation assembly decided to bring the situation to the attention of the security council as a possible threat to international peace. At the same time it called on the U.N.'s special committee on Southwest Africa to take urgent steps to remedy the situation with or without the cooperation of the South African government.

The vote was 83 to 0 with 8 abstentions. The abstainers included the so-called colonial powers. The United States voted yes.

The resolution charged South Africa specifically with racial discrimination in the former League of Nations mandate, with terrorization of the population and the use of armed force to impose its policies.

The assembly previously had censured South Africa for seeking to annex Southwest Africa.

Kids in Spring Subject of Special Feature

In the spring, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Under the same seasonal influence, a little boy's fancy not so lightly turns to the possibilities of losing his marbles.

Women's Editor Kathleen Reardon and Photographer Ed Deschler investigated the outdoor activities of the little people. . . boys playing marbles, dodge ball and baseball; girls playing hopscotch and taking their dolls for promenades.

The results of this sortie into the world of children appears in this evening's edition of the Appleton Post-Crescent on Page A-12.

Parents will be interested in discovering, in this word and picture story, that kids are kids everywhere. . . even as you and I.

C-Rations for U.N.

Boycott Continues

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)— The U.N. larder in Elisabethville was down to C-rations and just a little fresh food today.

A U.N. Spokesman said sellers of bread and other fresh foods still were carrying on the economic war Katanga President Moise Tshombe ordered Tuesday after his troops' attempt to take full control of the Elisabethville airport failed.

Sanctions Remain

U.N. officials said Tshombe, at a conference Wednesday with Gen. Sean McKewen, the U.N. military chief in the Congo, agreed to suspend the economic sanctions against the 1,000 U.N. troops and civilian employees, but Tshombe issued no orders to his people to that effect, and many still observed the boycott.

"Some sanctions have been lifted, others have not," there is no set pattern," the U.N. spokesman said.

Water and electric power.

switched off for two days, have been returned to most U.N. establishments.

Telephones have been connected again in the U.N. headquarters.

Shops and restaurants are still refusing to sell to U.N. troops and they still are not admitted to any hotels.

Meanwhile, the Katanga government stated that the drive by its army against anti-Tshombe Baluba tribesmen in North Katanga "is continuing effectively."

A government spokesman said the rebel - held town of Kabalo, some 400 miles north of Elisabethville, "is expected to fall to our troops in a matter of hours."

A force of some 100 U.N. Ethiopian troops is stationed in the town, but the U.N. spokesman said he had no news of any proposed action by the Ethiopians.

Terrorism in Saigon

American Aid Official Wounded by Grenade

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A months advising President Ngo Dinh Diem's government on the improvement of airport facilities, a wounded American aid official in Saigon. He was the first American victim of a terrorist in South Viet Nam since November.

The attack was also the first violence in South Viet Nam's capital since the Viet Cong Communist rebels stepped up their terror campaign in an effort to scare voters away from the polls at the presidential election Sunday.

The American, Howard C. Thomas, 47, of Fort Myers, Fla., was wounded in the right eye and his face was pierced by fragments of the grenade. U. S. officials said the injuries were not critical, but Thomas—whose vision in his left eye was already impaired—was flown to the Philippines for treatment at the U.S. Air Force Hospital at Clark Field.

On Way to Lunch

Thomas had just left his car and was crossing the garden at his residence, on his way to lunch, when the hand grenade exploded nearby. His residence is near to that of U. S. Ambassador Elbridge Durbrow.

The grenade thrower escaped. Thomas has been here for eight months.

Another American aid official, Dolph B. Owens of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and his Vietnamese driver were killed in a Viet Cong ambush 80 miles south of Saigon in November.

Castro Promises Cuba Abundance

HAVANA (AP)— Fidel Castro has promised Cubans that today's shortages will be "tomorrow's abundance."

The bearded prime minister spoke last night before an organization called the Committee for Defense of the Revolution, made up of public works ministry employees.

To Cubans feeling the squeeze of shortages in a number of essential commodities, Castro said "the sacrifices you are making today will provide the happiness of the future."

Earlier, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., had called for a strengthening of South Viet Nam's army to avoid the risk of losing the area to the communists.

The reaffirmation of strong U.S. support came as communist terrorists put up a campaign in advance of a Vietnamese presidential election Sunday.

But Virginia authorities have placed detainees against him. They want him on charges of murder in the death of Carroll Jackson and Janet. Rees could be ineligible for parole until the detainees are removed.

Melvin Davis Rees Jr., of Hyattsville, Md., was sentenced in Baltimore's U. S. District Court yesterday by Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen after the judge turned down defense motions for a retrial.

It was the maximum sentence the judge could impose on the 32-year-old defendant, tried under the Lindbergh law, since the jury which convicted Rees on Feb. 23 did not recommend the death penalty.

Convicted of Kidnaping

Rees, a jazz musician, was convicted of kidnaping Mrs. Mildred Jackson and her daughter, Susan, Jan. 11, 1959. Their bodies were found in a shallow grave near Gambrills, Md., in March of that year.

Mrs. Jackson's husband, Carroll V. Jackson Jr., 29, and another daughter, Janet, 12, had disappeared at the same time. They were found slain near Fredricksburg, Va.

Immediately after Rees was sentenced, one of his court-appointed attorneys, William J. Evans, said his client would not begin his term now, pending a possible appeal.

The defense has until April 17 in which to file a notice of appeal to the U. S. 4th circuit court of appeals—next step up in the federal judiciary system.

Evans said he did not know if the move would be made. "It's his (Rees') decision to make," he said.

Under the sentences handed down yesterday—life imprisonment for each count of the indictment against him—Rees could be eligible for parole in 15 years.

Bob Kennedy Asks 8 Laws To Curb Crime

Expects Action This Session on Some Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP)— Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, in his first Justice Department news conference, has called for eight powerful new laws to help curb organized crime.

The youthful attorney general said he was confident that "we will get some action on these bills" from Congress.

A record 174 newsmen, tops for a Justice Department conference, overflowed Kennedy's large reception room into adjacent offices Thursday.

In a wide-ranging, sometimes humorous discussion, they heard Kennedy touch, among other matters, on: Businessmen's ethics, juvenile delinquency, the deportation of a New Orleans racket figure, the John Birch Society and organized crime.

More Power for FBI

Kennedy, 35, a brother of the President, did not provide specific details of how he planned to operate against organized crime.

But, he asserted: "It is my firm belief that new laws are needed to give the FBI increased jurisdiction to assist local authorities in the common battle against the racketeers."

The new laws he has asked Congress to approve include five years imprisonment and $10,000 fines for interstate travel "to advance illegal activities."

"More and more," Kennedy said, "the bankrollers and king pins of the racketeers live luxurious, apparently respectable lives in one state, but return periodically to another state to collect from the racketeers they run by remote control."

Kennedy also called for: Punishment for persons intimidating or injuring anyone cooperating in a federal investigation. "Present law only protects witnesses called in judicial or congressional investigations."

Stiff new firearms regulations. The five other new laws requested by Kennedy were proposed in one form or another by his predecessor, William P. Rogers. They deal with stopping the flow of gambling information and equipment across state lines and broadening federal power in some other areas.

U. S. to Stand by South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)— The United States does not intend to let down the people of South Viet Nam "in the dangerous situation they are now facing," the state department said today.

Press Officer Robert McLokey said the administration of President Kennedy is "determined to continue its strong support of the government of Viet Nam."

Earlier, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., had called for a strengthening of South Viet Nam's army to avoid the risk of losing the area to the communists.

The reaffirmation of strong U.S. support came as communist terrorists put up a campaign in advance of a Vietnamese presidential election Sunday.

Gain Seen In Plan for Laos Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan reportedly fear the development of a series of crises between the Western powers and the Soviet Union this year.

This views are reported to prevail in spite of encouraging progress recently made toward agreement on a cease-fire in the civil war in Laos.

A generally somber outlook for East-West relations emerges from information made available by U. S. and British officials on the discussions of the two allied leaders here during the past two days. The talks were recessed today while Macmillan flies to Boston for an address at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Final Talks Saurday

A final session of the two men and their advisers will be held at the White House Saturday morning after which they plan to issue what one official called a business-like statement on the range of their discussions.

Meanwhile, from authorities who participated in the meetings, the following picture of immediate and potential cold war trouble spots shapes up:

1. The U.S.-British negotiations with the Soviet Union for an agreement to prohibit the testing of nuclear weapons permanently under an international policing system are making very little progress. The Soviet Union's new demand that the agreement be administered by a three-man directorate with a built-in Soviet veto.

Laos Report Says Red Planes Drop Added Soldiers

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Four Soviet planes have dropped more rebel soldiers and material near the royal army headquarters at Vang Vieng north of this capital, a government spokesman said today.

The announcement contradicted earlier reports that the Communist Pathet Lao had given up an attempt to seize the headquarters, 80 miles from Vientiane.

Tiao Sopsaisana said he was unrepentant himself as Roeder's son, able to say how many rebels and George Heldenbrand, who were dropped near Vang Vieng. But in a similar operation earlier this week, about 300 were dropped into the area.

The official said the information on the new drop came from Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, commander in to defraud the estate. The court, the area who was expected to be his able to handle the situation.

The general reported Thursday his forces were pushing north from Vang Vieng with a mile-long column of rebels in retreat before them. He said the royal forces mitted signing the bogus Roeder advanced 20 miles without encountering resistance.

Blockade Lifted by Congo Government

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)— The Congo central government announced today the lifting of a four-month-old blockade of rebel Oriental and Kivu Provinces, as a gesture to encourage forthcoming talks on a political settlement.

Economics Minister Jean-Pierre Dericoyard warned the blockade will be reimposed, however, if rebel soldiers or authorities threaten the security of goods or transport workers.

Dericoyard told a news conference that two Congo River barges, carrying 800 tons of vitally needed supplies, will leave Leopoldville Tuesday for the rebel capital of Stanleyville.

GOP Feels It Has Put Nelson In Embarrassing Position

Tax Staff Increased; Governor Had Cut It Back in His Budget

BY JOHN WYNGAARD Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — Republicans in the state legislature Thursday moved themselves into position to steal a march on Democratic Gov. Gaylord Nelson by backing the income tax law enforcement demands of Tax Commissioner John A. Gronouski.

By a vote of 11 to three, the GOP-controlled legislative budget writing committee voted to grant Gronouski, a Nelson appointee, the big income tax division staff increases he had requested and which Nelson had cut back substantially in writing his own budget recommendations for his legislators.

"The people of Wisconsin are getting disturbed about the tax scandals they are reading about," Republican Sen. Lorge, Outagamie County, said.

Undercutting

"I can't understand why the governor is undercutting his own department," chimed in Republican Sen. John Potter, Wisconsin Rapids, referring to the fact that one of Nelson's first acts as governor was to replace a Republican-appointed tax chief with Gronouski, whom he hailed as an outstanding expert in tax administration.

It was obvious from the discussion of the finance committee that the Republicans thought they had caught the governor in an untenable position. Potter recalled that Nelson has made at least one speech lately in which he predicted that the Republicans would

Refresher Tests For 3 Astronauts In Space Project

JOHNSVILLE, Pa.—(AP)— The three Project Mercury astronauts are undergoing intensive refresher tests on a giant centrifuge at the naval air development center here as the time nears to select one for a flight into space.

The astronauts began the three-day tests yesterday. They climbed into the cockpit of the centrifuge, a gondola on the end of a 40-foot arm, for their fourth series of simulated space flights.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the workouts expose the astronauts to the same acceleration forces one of them will face when he blasts off in a capsule atop a big Redstone rocket. The rocket will be fired some 100 miles high in a non-orbital 16-minute flight several hundred miles downrange from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

3 Jailed for Preparing Phony Will

CHICAGO (AP)—Three Iowans have been sent to jail for their part in preparing a phony will in the $390,000 estate of Max Roeder, a Chicago wigmaker.

The men, sentenced Thursday in Probate Court, may face additional penalties in connection with a fake will claiming the $150,000 estate of Mrs. Kirstine Jepsen, a Chicago recluse.

6-Month Term

Terms of six months in Cook County Jail were imposed on George P. Jordan, 49, who represented himself as Roeder's son, and George Heldenbrand, who were dropped near Vang Vieng. But in a similar operation earlier this week, about 300 were dropped into the area.

The official said the information on the new drop came from Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, commander in to defraud the estate. The court, the area who was expected to be his able to handle the situation.

"Witness" Sentenced

A 30-day sentence was imposed on Leonard (Happy) Chase, 59-year-old tree trimmer who admitted signing the bogus Roeder advanced 20 miles without encountering resistance.

Chase was found guilty of indirect contempt of court, and Jordan and Heldenbrand were sentenced for direct and indirect contempt.

Jordan, a farmhand employed by Langrehr, has admitted he wrote the Jepsen will, which resulted in $50,000 being paid to the late Mrs. Anna Langrehr, mother of Lester. When his mother died, Langrehr received the bulk of the money.

Soviet, West Talks At Standoff Again

Neither Side Ready to Take Responsibility for Breaking Off Nuclear Test Ban Session

GENEVA (AP)—The Western control machinery to police any powers and the Soviet Union were test ban with a demand for what at another standoff in the nuclear test ban talks today with neither side ready to take the responsibility for breaking off negotiations. He proposed that the control organization be headed by a three-man directorate representing the Communist bloc, the Western nations and the neutralist nations. Unanimity would be required for any action.

British delegate David Ormsby-Gore declared Thursday that the West has shown "monumental patience" and drew a sharp re-tort from Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin that "our patience can certainly match yours."

Despite the Soviet refusal to come an inch toward the Western position, Ormsby-Gore told Tsarapkin Britain and the United States have no intention "at this time" of quitting the talks.

Another Recess
Some Western diplomats are talking about another recess in the negotiations, that resumed March 21 after a suspension of 3½ months.

The West in a package plan has accepted several Soviet proposals for joint nuclear experimentation but Tsarapkin countered the West's insistence on independent

Bill Provides Compensation For Migrants

Proposal Receives Unanimous Backing From Committee

MADISON (AP)—Migrant farm workers — often pictured as the forgotten members of the nation's labor force—would be covered by Wisconsin's workmen's compensation laws under a bill presented to a Senate Committee Thursday. The bill — and a companion measure to increase existing workmen's compensation benefits—received unanimous backing from representatives of farm, labor and cannery organizations at a hearing of the Senate Labor, Taxation, Insurance and Banking committee.

Marvin Verhulst of the Wisconsin Cannery Association said the bill "can refute some of the criticism leveled at agricultural employers."

Six or More Workers
Benefits of Wisconsin's 50-year-old workmen's compensation law would be extended by the measure to workers on farms employing six or more workers for a period of at least 20 days. The six workers would not include farmers' wives, children or a long list of other relatives.

The exceptions apparently helped overcome strong opposition which has greeted previous attempts to provide the protection of workmen's compensation to farm workers who might be injured on the job.

If approved by the Legislature, the measure would go into effect in 1962.

Supporters of the bill said it would bring most migrant farm workers under workmen's compensation. Foreign migrants who work in Wisconsin already are covered, and many others are covered because some farmers voluntarily joined the program.

Coverage costs agricultural employers from $1.81 to $5.17 per $100 of payroll. Supporters agreed costs to some farmers would be high, but pointed out that coverage rules out many suits against them by injured workers.

A second bill would increase maximum weekly benefits for temporarily disabled workers from $7.14 to $8.72. Maximum benefits to workers who are partially and permanently disabled would go from $5.14 to $6.07 weekly.

In cases of permanent total disability or death, workers or their survivors could be paid maximum benefits of $85.72 weekly, compared to the present maximum of $77.14.

The bill also recognizes the possibility of new types of industrial injuries as Wisconsin industry moves into the atomic age. It would permit claims for injuries or death resulting from radiation to be filed up to 25 years after the injury.

"No one now knows when the effects of radiation may appear," said R. G. Knutson of the State Industrial Commission.

The bill also would increase maximum payment from $3,500 to $7,000 to an employee prevented from working, but not disabled, by silicosis, a lung disease found among miners.

Grave for Teen-ager Killed in Accident Is Marked 'Unknown'

CENTREVILLE, Ala. (AP)—An unidentified teen-ager boy, killed in a traffic accident March 27, was buried Thursday. His grave marker says simply: "Unknown."

The boy, believed to be 13 or 14 years old, had hitched a ride in a car which crashed into the Cahaba River. The driver swam to safety.

Coroner Jack Lee said residents of this Alabama community raised money to pay for a grave marker. It will contain the boy's photograph in hopes that some day he will be identified.

Investigators said the boy told persons with whom he had ridden that he was hitchhiking from the Carolinas to California to go into the service.

Scientists Say Reds Use More Brainpower

Soviets Throw More Scientific Work Into Government Problems Than West

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., (AP) — Russia is throwing much scientific brainpower into her governmental problems than the western nations, scientists assembled here say.

This is one of the opinions advanced by 150 first-rate brains from 30 nations after four days of no-holds-barred talk at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Some others:

An intelligent adult today will be a dunce tomorrow if he does not continually seek reeducation. The world's population may double in 20 years with explosive consequences.

Man today lives in three stages of history at once amid tensions never before experienced; but it is a challenging, invigorating era.

Man is the first animal in the long history of earth to develop the means of his own extinction. Despite the risks of today, man has reason to face the morrow unafraid and optimistic.

Prisoner Admits Starting $5,000 Milwaukee Fire

WAUPUN (AP)—An inmate at the Wisconsin State Prison here admitted Thursday that he had started a $5,000 Milwaukee fire to hide his fingerprints in a $190 burglary.

Detective Frank Belot of the Milwaukee police department said that David A. Grocholski, 20, of Thomas Gates, Jr.

Freeman will be a principal assistant to the Atlantic command, in chief "for joint planning and operations," the spokesman said.

The use of the word "operations" suggested that the task force has a function beyond that of mere planning for contingency.

In event of trouble, the task force, under over-all direction of the Atlantic command, would be the headquarters for any military move to cope with limited war situations.

Task Force 4 Organized by U. S. Military

Would Plan Use Of Combat Troops In 'Brush Fires'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Pentagon staff has been formed to plan how land, sea and air forces should be used in any Atlantic region brush fire involving the United States.

Designated as "Joint Task Force Four," the unit is set up as a permanent planning staff under the commander-in-chief, Atlantic, the defense department said today.

Heading the task force is Lt. Gen. Paul L. Freeman, veteran army combat officer whose experience includes guerrilla-type fighting in Burma during World War II.

Maj. Gen. Sory Smith, a tactical Air Force officer in World War II and on the staff of the commander in chief, Pacific, in recent years, has been appointed deputy commander of the task force. Third in the force's command is Brig. Gen. William R. Collins of the Marine Corps, serving as chief of staff.

As presently organized, the force includes 74 officers and men of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines, with headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va.

A Pentagon spokesman said the task force is a "permanent planning staff under the commander in chief, Atlantic." He declined to be specific about what areas are of direct interest to the task force.

However, the Atlantic command — essentially a sea command — encompasses a huge area from the Arctic to the Antarctic. And it includes portions of Africa outside areas for which other U. S. unified or specified commands hold responsibility.

The eastern boundary of the Atlantic command actually includes part of the Indian Ocean.

A Pentagon spokesman said the task force was created formally in early January. This indicated that the project originated with and was approved under the former Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates, Jr.

Freeman will be a principal assistant to the Atlantic command, in chief "for joint planning and operations," the spokesman said.

The use of the word "operations" suggested that the task force has a function beyond that of mere planning for contingency.

In event of trouble, the task force, under over-all direction of the Atlantic command, would be the headquarters for any military move to cope with limited war situations.

Porpoise May Give Navy Ideas on New Design for Torpedos

'Notty' Also Reveals Clues to Underwater Sound Detection

WASHINGTON (AP)—A plump porpoise named "Notty" has given Navy scientists ideas that could change their concepts of torpedo design, underwater sound detection, and antisubmarine warfare.

Smooth Water Flow
"If present theories on the porpoise's secret of speed are correct, future subs and torpedoes may have heated skins that can ripple," said an article in the current issue of Naval Research Reviews.

This is an official Navy publication reporting highlights of technical progress in research by Navy laboratories and contractors.

Superbly Intelligent
The article discussed observations on the 6-foot, 180-pound female porpoise as conducted by scientists of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif. Notty, described as a "superbly intelligent animal," draws its name from the first letters of the station's title.

Last spring, the station commissioned Marineland of the Pa-ci fic at Palos Verdes, Calif., to catch and train a porpoise—and "Notty" was the mammal it caught.

"One theory of the porpoise's speed is its control of its skin to reduce drag," the report said.

Dive Deeper
"An explanation of all this," the research report said, "may lead to the development of techniques enabling men to dive deeper and to escape from submarines without long periods of decompression."

Sound detection is one of the Navy's biggest problems in anti-submarine defense, and in this field, too, "Notty" is contributing to the Navy's knowledge.

"It is believed that the porpoise has a greater sound range than the Navy's equipment," the report said.

"Notty" is able to navigate while blindfolded, it said, doing this by sending out sounds and receiving them as they bounce back as echoes, much like a sonar transmitter.

Jobless Can File For New Benefits Starting Monday

MADISON (AP)—The Industrial Commission's Unemployment Compensation department said today claims under the new federal jobless aid program can be filed starting Monday.

Jobless workers who qualify for temporary extended benefits can file claims at state employment offices throughout the state.

To qualify unemployed workers must have exhausted normal benefits under a state or federal jobless compensation law since June 30, 1960. A worker must be able and available for work and registered for a job in order to claim the new benefits.

Thirteen weeks is the longest period for which new aids will be paid but fewer weeks will apply in many cases.

The department added it expects about 5,000 jobless workers will claim the new benefits.

Highway Death Toll 201; 162 Year Ago

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The deaths of two persons from injuries received in automobile accidents earlier this week have raised Wisconsin's 1961 highway traffic toll to 201, compared with 162 on this date a year ago.

Ralph L. Jacobson, 38, Madison, died in a Dodgeville hospital Thursday night of injuries sustained Wednesday in a crash which killed his wife and Robert D. Jones, 22, Ridgeway. The crash occurred on Highways 18-151 near Dodgeville.

Mrs. Lena Sack, 67, Reeseville, died Thursday of injuries suffered Monday when her car was struck by a freight train at a grade crossing in Reeseville.

Repeal Measure Faces Lawmakers

Proposal Would Do Away With Portion of 1959 Billboard Law

MADISON (AP)—A measure to operative utilities would be repealed portions of the 1959 bill.

board control law heads a short but controversial list of proposals scheduled for public hearings by the Legislature next week.

The lawmakers will help the Milwaukee Braves open the 1961 baseball season Tuesday and no hearings are scheduled.

On Wednesday the Senate Highway Committee will consider the billboard measure introduced by Sens. Leland McParland, D-Cudahy, and Earl Morton, R-Kenosha.

The bill would: Repeal the one sign limit on property advertisements along the Interstate Highway System.

On Premise Activity Allow signs advertising on-premise activities to be located 75 feet from the business establishment instead of 50 feet.

Repeal the one sign limit on signs providing essential information on food, lodging and repairs.

Provide that rules adopted by the state to regulate essential information signs on parts of the right of way acquired prior to July 1, 1956 can not be more restrictive than rules adopted by the counties where the signs are located.

A constitutional test of the state billboard regulation law is now before Judge Edwin M. Wilkie's Dane County Circuit Court.

Nation Divided

Eichmann — 'Triumph or Tragedy'

Sums Up Israel's Discussions

JERUSALEM (AP) — Spread across six columns of discussion in the Israeli newspaper Jerusalem Post is the caption "Trying Eichmann—triumph or tragedy?"

This question is the subject of fierce controversy in Israel today with many clashing points of view.

He is charged formally with "crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against humanity."

Understand Value One line of Israeli thought is that the story of the fate that overtook the Jews in Europe, when told in the coming trial, will make younger Israelis understand the value of an independent Jewish state.

In laying the foundation for the trial, Attorney General Gideon Hausner likely will go deeply into this story.

His opening statement to the three judges may run 50,000 words, dealing not only with Eichmann but with the Nazi hierarchy and its policies.

Possible Challenge Eichmann's chief defense counsel is Dr. Robert Servatius of West Germany. He may attempt to challenge the validity of the trial because Eichmann was kidnapped in Buenos Aires.

The courtroom with 756 seats resembles a theater. About two-thirds of the seats will be occupied by journalists from 35 nations. Diplomats, foreign observers and lawyers will take virtually all the others.

Eichmann will sit behind sheets of bulletproof glass on the audience's left, speaking through a microphone and listening with earphones.

The official language, Hebrew, will be translated into English, German and French. Interpreters will sit in a cubicle overlooking the scene.

The trial likely will last several months.

Taxpayers Get Extra 2 Days To File Returns Taxpayers in the Fox Cities and throughout the nation will get an extra two days in which to file their federal and state income tax returns this year.

Because the normal April 15 deadline falls on a Saturday, a day tax offices are closed, the law provides an automatic extension to the following Monday, April 17.

As a general rule, whenever a tax filing deadline falls on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday, taxpayers get a time extension.

The law isn't specific on this point, but past practice has been to consider as filed on time any mailed return postmarked before midnight on deadline day.

Fox Cities taxpayers will be able to file their state returns Saturday morning at the Appleton district office. The office in the Outagamie County courthouse annex will be open from 8 a. m. to noon that Saturday only.

Wisconsin Among 15 States Without Sales Tax Revenues

25 Others Enacted Withholding On Income; Some Have Both

BY JAMES SCOTTON MADISON (AP)— Wisconsin is one of only 15 states which have not enacted a sales tax in this era of rising government costs.

Twenty-five states have turned to a withholding system of collecting state income taxes in a search for more revenue.

Thus, Wisconsin's big tax question—sales tax or withholding system?—already has been answered in one way or another by most states.

Some Have Both And in some states the answer was "yes" in both cases. Sixteen states have both a sales tax and a withholding system.

State sales taxes range from a low of 2 per cent (10 states) to a high of 4 per cent in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Washington. Washington will cut its rate to 3.5 per cent in July.

Many states have complicated systems of exemptions on food and other articles. And most states exempt manufacturers' materials on the theory that the tax will be collected on the finished product.

Biggest Headache Experts say one big headache in sales tax collection is installment buying. The question is whether the tax is due when the sale is made or when the item is fully paid for.

Personal income taxes are levied by 35 states. And 23 of these states also have sales taxes. Wisconsin and nine other states collect personal income taxes with a payroll deduction system.

Georgia, Maine and New Mexico decided to adopt the withholding system this year. Kentucky legislators did also, but a special referendum was called and voters blocked the plan.

On a net taxable income of $5,000 to $6,000, the average state income tax is 3 per cent. Idaho's 9.5 per cent is the highest in the nation.

Lower Incomes Many states have reduced rates for the low income brackets. In Iowa it is less than 1 per cent for incomes under $1,000. But a few states have relatively low rates in the upper brackets, too.

Arizona's top tax rate is 4.5 per cent for those with a net taxable income of more than $7,000. District of Columbia's tax rate doesn't reach 4.5 per cent until taxable income gets over $25,000.

Wisconsin has one of the most detailed personal income tax tables.

It starts at 1 per cent for income under $1,000. At $5,000 the tax rate is 3 per cent and incomes over $14,000 are taxed at an 8.5 per cent rate.

Wisconsin also is one of the few states adding a surtax on top of the normal income tax. Wisconsin's current surtax is 20 per cent of the normal tax.

Three Have Neither Three states — Nebraska, New Jersey and Texas—manage to get along without either a sales tax or a personal property tax.

The State Borrowing Mess

The legislative finance or budget-writing committee has voted to cut back Gov. Nelson's institution building program for the next two years, manifestly because it feels it cannot or dare not spare the cash appropriations that will be needed to maintain it at the level suggested by the governor.

The budget men of the legislature are obviously more concerned about cash commitments, at a time of budget-balancing difficulties, than they are about the legitimacy of the building proposals, for in the same sitting the other day they approved plans for further borrowing by an existing state "dummy corporation" and gave their blessing to the creation of yet another of such artificial entities to elude the constitutional inability of the state government itself to issue long-term bonds.

The people on whose behalf these decisions are being made must be confounded by the inconsistencies. They must also be curious why these admittedly subterfuge methods are being supported by the lawmakers at Madison, who have shown no interest whatever in the proposal to amend the constitution to open the way to legitimate state debt.

The time has come, it seems to us, for the men we have sent to Madison to ask themselves some basic questions, and to adapt their actions to their conclusions:

Does the state need new institutional capital investment, in the way of classrooms, libraries, hospitals, reformatories and others that will serve 30 or 40 years?

What is the probable total of such needs, and can they be fairly met out of current tax impositions?

The answers are probably reasonably evident, to those who have noted the discussion of these questions during more than a decade.

Wisconsin does need new institution building, without the slightest doubt. The only room for argument is the amount. Gov. Nelson cut down the urgently filed requests of administrative officials by half. Even if the legislature accepts that one-half estimate, it is patent that it cannot be financed out of current state revenues without painful tax increases beyond those already looming. A good case, moreover, can be made for the view that such long-term facilities should be financed on a long-term basis.

That brings up the question of method. Should the state continue to use the corporation gimmick? Or should it borrow above board, within strict limits as to purpose and amount, by amending its anti-debt clause? That is the question the people of Wisconsin must decide shortly.

Justice for All

The chief delegate from Ghana to the United Nations has called upon member nations to inaugurate complete economic and diplomatic quarantine of South Africa until its repressive racial policies are changed. But the same type of sanctions against other nations which practice injustices as recognized in the United Nations Charter have never been suggested by Ghana.

The plan is based upon proposals made last June at a meeting of many African representatives in Addis Ababa. The sanctions would include the ending of all communications with South Africa, a refusal to allow ships or planes any facilities, boycotting of all goods and breaking off diplomatic relations. The delegate from Libya has gone still further and suggested the expulsion of South Africa for its "persistent violations" of the Charter.

The violations certainly can be proved against South Africa. Certainly the anger of African nationals against racial oppression is understandable. But there are more violations of the Charter than segregation.

Farm Policy on the New Frontier

The New Frontier's farm policy has proved to be not so much of a boundary as a badly contested no man's land spiked with mines, booby traps and a fifth column of dissension makers.

Simply put, the Kennedy farm package aims at placing controls and subsidies on a commodity basis written and approved by the producers. The consumers' protection is a Congressional veto fraught with destructive logrolling political consideration.

Although the plan certainly falls short of the dire simile of allowing smugglers to write the custom laws, it cannot, by any stretch of objective imagination, be considered a panacea.

Besides adding rather than cutting governmental controls and increasing rather than alleviating the taxpayers' thankless job of seeing his taxes used to keep the prices of his food and fiber high, the Kennedy proposal seems to be visionary in the extreme.

The heart of the plan — whatever its merit — is a national farmer advisory committee through which the commodity arrangements are to be made. At first glance nothing could seem more fair and practical, but is it?

Residents of Wisconsin and the Fox Valley have ample reason to doubt its practicality. If there is a better combination for a Donnybrook than an Ulster and Dublin Irish meeting, it is a committee of farmers deciding what is best for them.

Nearly four years ago a slash in the milk support price sounded a tocsin. Fox Valley farmers rose in alarm and at a meeting in Appleton a "Fair Price Committee" was formed for the express purpose of devising a united front on which the dairy farmers could fight for their "fair price."

Not only was it difficult to build the committee's membership on a representative basis, but exploration of a commonly acceptable plan foundered on battles over details.

One of the visionary preoccupations of the Fair Price Committee was just such an advisory committee envisioned in the New Frontier program. Without proper enabling legislation, the FPC discovered its plan would be illegal and, at the time, the political climate was unfavorable for the right action and the committee didn't have a chance to try to work out its way through the fight-provoking details.

Participating on the sidelines of the Fair Price Committee meetings was an organization from the East that aimed at creating a nationwide bargaining and control body. It has persisted through the years and its membership is growing. At the Catholic Rural Life Conference recently, it received an invitation to leave the state alone. The director of our state department of agriculture declared there are enough such units here without adding another — and that from out of state and new!

If the Kennedy proposal ever runs the gauntlet of an aroused GOP-Dixiecrat coalition — an unlikely prospect — the administration will think it tried to garrison Ft. Sumter on April 12, 1961, when the farmers start deciding on what's best for them. When the consumer is heard from it will think it was back at Bastogne.

Bitter Fight Looms On Sugar Legislation

From The Milwaukee Journal

A bitter fight looms in congress over renewal of the sugar act, the device by which American sugar growers maintain a protected and highly profitable market. The decision could have far reaching effects on our foreign policy.

Under the sugar act, the government divides the United States market for raw sugar among different nations and domestic producers. Foreign producers are anxious to do business with us because we pay 75 per cent above the world market. Our own growers want to keep foreign sugar from depressing the market. The American consumer is the loser in the end; he pays the premium.

The act expires March 31. Ordinarily it is extended without much fuss, but this time is different because of Cuba. The Eisenhower administration cut off Cuba's quota, normally a third of all the sugar consumed in this country. It is unlikely that Cuba will get its quota restored, and so it must be reapportioned.

If the domestic industry is given a very large share (it now supplies about a fifth of the total quota), there will be little left for friendly nations like Brazil, which wants to expand trade with the United States, or Formosa, which may need help if some of the Cuban sugar now going to Red China shows up at cut rate prices in Formosa's markets.

Normal relations with Cuba require that we buy a large share of its sugar crop, because the Cuban economy hinges almost entirely on sugar and the United States is the natural market. If we close the door to purchase of Cuban sugar, and take our trade elsewhere on a permanent basis, it may be difficult ever to reestablish good relations with the island.

The problem is not going to be settled easily. We got into this mess in 1934 when congress enacted the original legislation. We won't get out of it until the whole business of an artificial, controlled market is straightened out.

More Expressions of Opinion On Federal Aid to Education

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Recent trends in the letter column, regarding the proposed Federal Aid to Education prompt this letter. There appears to be some confusion in the minds of the letter writers.

One of the great strengths of our nation has been its system of free public schools. All children are entitled to attend these schools without regard to creed, and all share in the cost of providing this basic schooling for our children, to the end that all children may learn to read, write, and reason intelligently. There are those good neighbors both Lutheran and Catholic, who desire an educational opportunity firmly grounded in their respective faiths, for their children. Having rejected the basic opportunity (which has high standards, under a prescribed course of study, they set up their own parochial schools, at their own expense. They act freely in making this choice for their children.

To expect aid from the federal government is to impinge upon the principle of the separation of church and state. This principle has been the protector of the rights of all of us, whether we belong to a religious group that is large or small. It is to be deplored that some of us so lack vision that we would attempt to confuse this issue, and act as though the public schools were "Protestant", and the parochial schools were "Catholic". The public schools are a great American institution, and the parochial schools, in the American tradition of free choice, are the outgrowth of the desire of some of us to give our children an enlarged religious education.

To give aid to schools other than public would result in government control for those schools. In the south it would encourage the building of private, or parochial schools, particularly if some groups could then circumvent the issue of segregation. If such aid were forthcoming, what is to prevent Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, our Jewish friends, and many others from all building their own schools, in the interests of their own religions? Do you think this would promote good relations in the communities in which it happened, or would it sparate, segregate, and divide?

There is also the expense of administering federal aid. Experts on taxes state that we would get back about one-third of what it would cost. Before we hasten to give away our freedoms, how about remembering that we are all Americans, and we are here privileged to be Catholic, Jew, or Protestant according to our own enlightenment, conscience, or tradition.

Editor, Post-Crescent:

In answer to the article signed F.H.F. in regards to the Parochial School issue why don't these people identify as to what type Parochial School are forever seeking aid and support from the general public. I know of some Parochial Schools that at no time solicit or ask help for their schools but take care of the religious schooling within their congregations. I know that their teaching costs are about the same as the city public schools.

Neither do they use their children to solicit funds by many means including ticket sales, seed sales, etc., hoping that those out of their congregation won't refuse a child but would refuse the parent.

Lets not becloud the issue by the loose use of Parochial School.

A Reader
Appleton

Editor, Post-Crescent:

This is to correct some statements made by "A Reader" P. C. Mar. 31 — since he or she asked for it.

With the single exception you mentioned, all church schools must, and do maintain the same standards that public schools do. Their teachers must be qualified and their schools accredited.

You are in error when you say that the sole purpose of private schools is the teaching of religion. Religion is the primary purpose for which church schools were founded, but they also meet all standards of curriculum set for public schools.

I am opposed to Federal Aid to schools — all schools — because it will bring controls on a state or federal level, which will be far more costly to the taxpayers. Any federal aid to schools comes out of our tax dollars and we will have no voice in the administration of it.

We want to keep our local school boards, our elective county superintendent, and our open elections.

Write about it to our senators and our congressman.

Tax Justice, Taxpayers Considered?

From The Mobile Register

Repeal of the federal excise tax on automobiles continues to be a goal of Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain of Michigan.

"As many attempts as there have been to repeal the auto excise tax, as many times as I have raised my voice in that demand, and despite much encouragement and inaction in the past," he says, "there still exists a large, persistent and, I believe, growing body of public opinion that strongly declares this tax reform to be both desirable and important economically, and unqualifiedly necessary in terms of tax justice."

Wyngaard Offers Apology to Voters

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — It may be that the electorate of Wisconsin is entitled to an apology from this corner.

A fortnight or less ago it was remarked here that the constitutional amendment referendum prepared for the spring election was an uncommonly complex and long one, and that many voters might not wholly understand the issues involved.

It was also suggested, on the basis of the history of such referenda decisions, that not wholly understanding, the people might be inclined to vote negatively to be on the cautious side.

Nothing could have been more erroneous — whatever justification the record might have shown for the previous speculations.

No detached student of Wisconsin affairs can deny that the voters in the elections Tuesday performed brilliantly on the referendum issues — whatever individual tastes might suggest about the decisions in the choice of candidates for the sundry offices listed. Nor can anyone seriously dispute, given the demonstration of careful picking and choosing on that long ballot, that the decisions were deliberate and taken with sufficient understanding.

THE RESULTS

Readers may also recall that there was expressed here some apprehension about the possibility that one of the major referendum questions, proposing reform in the personal property tax system, might go under because there was very little promotional or educational effort visible and because the topic is intrinsically a difficult one.

The average man does not pay personal property taxes. Perhaps the ratio of personal property taxpayers to general property taxpayers is one in ten, maybe less. This was an issue that related to a general economic problem, rather than to personal welfare. Yet the proposal for a constitutional amendment for a reform in the system of personal property assessment carried decisively, so decisively that no one can legitimately doubt the will of the community on the matter. That decision leads to many significant possibilities in future state policy, which will be explored at greater length later.

The chronicler of public events is under the temptation to assume that when the electorate ratifies its own views of the merits of a public issue it is performing brilliantly, as when the voters denied their approval once again to the dream of the county sheriffs' for the right to unlimited tenure. Yet here also the margin of decision was so substantial, and the meaning of the question so unmistakable, that there can be no serious doubt that the people knew what they wanted and took the chance to say so.

THE AMENDMENT PROCESS

Even the philosophical controversial and difficult issue of removing the jury verdict of necessity rule in local government condemnation actions was approved decisively — albeit after an enormously intensive and expensive campaign by its sponsors.

These events fortify a conviction that often has been expressed in this space — that the existing constitutional amendment process of Wisconsin, however awkward and laborious and time-consuming it may appear to some of the impetuous advocates of change, is an eminently safe and satisfactory one.

There are those who would take short-cuts, through constitutional conventions, or through less dramatic means as recently suggested by Gov. Nelson's advisory commission.

But here in the dramatically clear results of six separate referendum ballots would appear to be a complete justification for the careful amendment rules of the constitutional fathers, not to mention the Jeffersonian ideal of popular competence and democratic responsibility.

gressman for speaking out in their behalf, the taxpayers may be inclined to wonder whether the dominant political forces in Washington any longer associate tax justice with taxpayers.

Ecuador Meeting Could Blow Up

Castristas, Communists Stirring Tension to Dynamite Conference

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

An Inter-American conference is scheduled for Quito, Ecuador, next month to examine Latin American problems. It may create new ones, wind up in crisis and provide an excuse for violent attacks on the United States.

Organized communists and followers of Cuba's Castro are planning to disrupt the May 24 meeting, sponsored by the Organization of American States.

Ecuador's president, Jose Velasco Ibarra, is battling all attempts to postpone the meeting, even though it may blow up in his face. He has even ousted one of his ministers for advising against Quito as the site for the meeting.

The communists and Castristas, led by wily Pedro Saad, general secretary of the Ecuadorian Communist Party, are seemingly intent on turning the conference into a fiasco. It could be as violent as the one that exploded at Bogota in the presence of Secretary of State George C. Marshall in 1948.

Anti-Yankee sentiment exists in Quito, Guayaquil and other Ecuadorian cities, especially among university students, intellectuals and members of trade unions. Capitalizing on this, the communist-Castrista combine is demanding that "Latin Americanism" replace Pan-Americanism. In a word: keep the Yankees out.

A few days ago, with Saad in attendance, the Ecuadorian Confederation of Labor damned the May 24 meeting in advance as proof of U.S. plans to "enslave Latin American peoples" and to infiltrate and colonize Latin America. It said the Quito conference would be used by the United States "to push its aggressive policy and hatch a plot against the Cuban revolution and the national interests of the Ecuadorian people." These quotations came from a Red Chinese account of the labor federation meeting.

The Quito conference already has been postponed twice and there are many signs of nervousness about it among government leaders of other Latin nations. Cautious diplomatic approaches have been made seeking to have it postponed again.

But President Velasco Ibarra has let it be known he considers it a matter of national dignity that the meeting be held. Furthermore, he is insisting also that it take up the endless Ecuador-Peru quarrel over a strip of border territory. Peru has announced that in such case she will not attend.

Peru contends the border question was settled in 1942 by the treaty of Rio de Janeiro. This involves the United States, Chile, Argentina and Brazil in the squabble, since they agreed to guarantee the treaty.

The border question would not be of much importance except that the reds are expertly using it to add to the feeling of tension. In Ecuador the communists have at their call a core of 5,000 fanatic party members, a large section of the student population, much of the labor union movement and, apparently, a flow of ready Soviet money.

Manuel Araujo Hidalgo, 36-year-old lawyer who was a former Velasco minister, was fired for taking part in pro-Castro agitation. The short, spade-bearded and bespectacled Araujo is a warm admirer of Castro and a declared ally of communist causes. He has aroused fanatic student support for himself.

Widespread Concern
The lanky president has been insisting that his government is holding the extremists at arm's length, that there is no real danger to Ecuador, and that Ecuador is not tolerating revolutionary agitation from the outside.

But there is widespread concern in Latin America that the Quito conference can be turned into an occasion for violent demonstrations, and that thus it could play into communist-Castrista hands.

Velasco Ibarra is not listening. In fact, he has apparently instructed his ambassadors to relay the word that any move to postpone or cancel the conference will be considered by Ecuador as a hostile act.

Vines Beautify Yards If Used Appropriately

BY GEORGE E. CREED
Landscape Architect

Both vines and ground covers can play an important part in foundation plantings, but they must be selected carefully and used appropriately.

Vines of various sorts may be featured on masonry walls. It is best to keep them separate from frame houses by trellises or other supports, so they will not interfere with painting from time to time. Certain vines, such as English Ivy and Wintercreeper, can be used as espaliered plants. Other faster growing vines, such as Boston Ivy and Virginia Creeper, do not lend themselves well to such formal use. The latter should be allowed to ramble and may be kept from getting too far afield by occasional trimming.

Sketch A shows an English Ivy

vine used in a foundation planting. Trained to a definite form, it fills an important role that is maintained by clipping two or three times a year.

Sketch B illustrates Low's Japanese Creeper which is allowed to grow at random on the face of a masonry wall. Though it is used here only as an adjunct of the other foundation plantings its interlacing stems and leaves form a pleasing, natural pattern adorning the wall on which it grows.

Various low growing ground covers such as English Ivy, Myrtle, Pachysandra, Bearberry, prostrate forms of Juniper and Cotoneaster are very valuable in foundation plantings. These are particularly interesting and effective in connection with rambling modern houses where they are used to establish horizontal bands of continuous green which echo the long lines of such structures. The use of ground cover in this way is suggested in Sketch C.

Economy Sought

Most buyers of vacation homes prefer models in which material costs are about $1,500, according to a national plywood association.

Queries Answered

Q. After cleaning the rotten wood out of a tree there is quite a cavity left. Should I fill this with concrete?

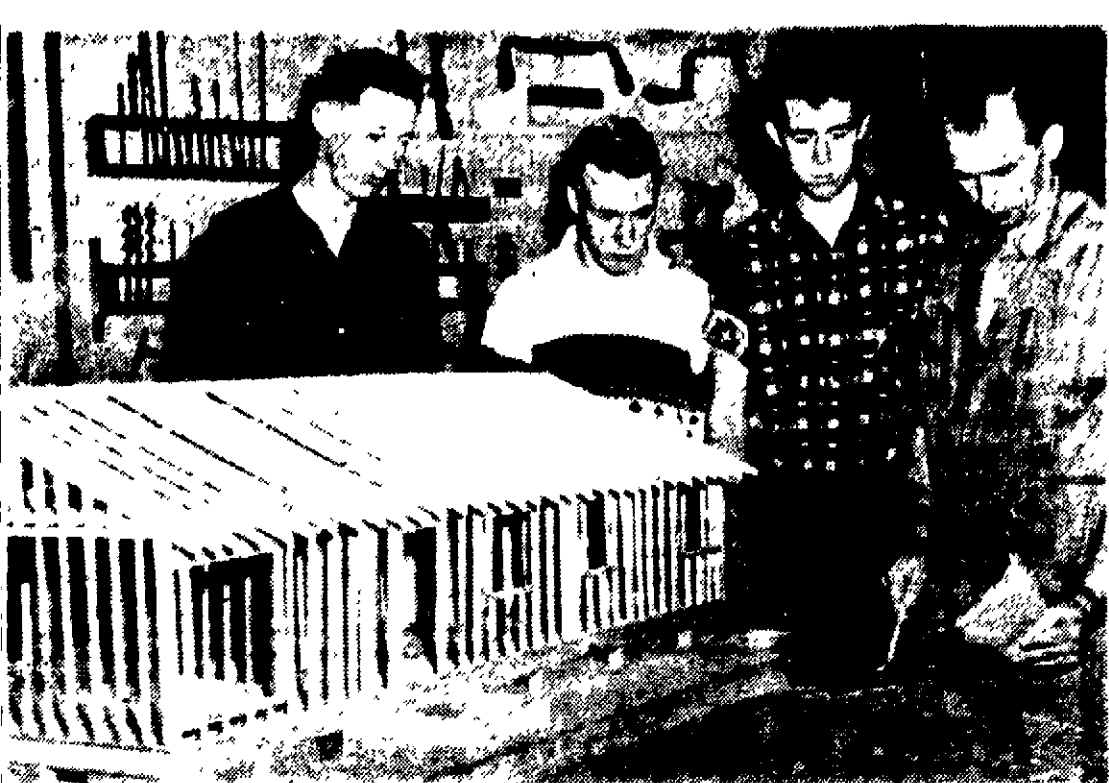

A. No. Just paint the interior of the cavity with a good tree paint and leave it that way.

Q. Do crabapples bloom every year?

A. Unfortunately, there are many that don't bloom every other year.

Do It Yourself

Here's How to Convert Attic Into New Rooms

BY J. RALPH DALZELL

Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

According to the predictions, more money will be spent for home modernization and improvements than for new home construction during 1961. Home owners are planning to bring their residence requirements up to current needs rather than obligate themselves to long term and high rate mortgages for new houses.

An ever increasing number of readers have asked for suggestions on remodeling.

House areas can be remodeled improved and modernized without great expense where the home owner is a do-it-yourself fan, remodeling costs can be greatly reduced.

Attic areas are going to waste in many older houses. With simple remodeling work they can be made into playrooms, bedrooms or studios to accommodate family needs. Here is how to evaluate your attic space and do the remodeling.

Two More Rooms

Picture 1 shows the outline of a typical attic space found in most square or rectangular houses. Windows are generally located on two sides. Roofs are generally triangularly shaped (as shown in picture 2) so that there is considerable space between the sloping rafters and the attic floor. In the space shown by the unshaded areas there may be capacity for one or two rooms. If there is enough space that the ceiling height, X, can be at least seven feet, six inches or eight feet, and if the width of the space, AF, is sufficient for one or more rooms, remodeling is possible.

The knee walls (AB and EF in pictures 2 and 3) can be between three and six feet high, depending upon the width AF. The knee walls are framed of 2x4 stock (as shown in picture 3). If the knee walls will be at right angles to the floor joists, the 2x4 sills can be nailed to the joists. However, if the knee walls are parallel to the joints nail in 2x4 headers, spaced about two feet apart, so that the knee wall sills can be nailed to the headers (as shown in picture 5). To do this, it will be necessary to take up any attic flooring.

Place the 2x4 sills along the attic floor, first without nailing. They will indicate the positions of the knee walls (see picture 3). Plan the knee walls so that they will be as near six feet high as possible, but not sacrificing too much floor space (as AF in picture 2). The higher the knee walls are, the less sloping ceiling (as BC) and the more headroom in the space. Dressers, chests of drawers, etc., can be placed next to knee walls.

The knee wall studs (see picture 3) should be 2x4 stock. Use one stud under each rafter. If

Clintonville Students Learn Principles of Home Building

CLINTONVILLE — Second year all of them worked from the students in woodworking at the same set of plans.

Clintonville Senior High School have been building miniature model homes, under the supervision of Hans Hatopp, instructor.

The students work in groups of three to five, using authentic plans secured from a Clintonville lumber company. The only difference, Hatopp said, is that the models are built to a scale of one inch equals one foot.

The purpose of building models is to familiarize students with names of framing members and construction methods used in building a home. The students all built one type of model, and possible, the studs should be spaced 1 1/2 inches on centers. Toenail the studs to the sills. Then nail the studs to the under edges of the rafters (as shown in picture 4). Make sure the studs are plumb.

All together, there were 11 models built this year. The house has a large kitchen, living room, three bedrooms and bath, and a basement. The platform on which the model is built represents the ground level of the house.

The collar beams (see CD in picture 3) can be 2x4 stock nailed at ends C and D to the rafters. The height above floor, X, should be as much above seven and a half feet as possible. The collar beams should be spaced sixteen inches on centers, or according to the rafter spacing.

The space above the collar beams should be ventilated by louvers at each end of the space. Ventilation is necessary in order to avoid condensation in cold climates and excess heat during hot weather.

Next Week: How to insulate and finish remodeled attic space.

Questions and Answers

Q. The water pipes along our basement ceiling hammer and clutter every time a faucet is turned off. Is there a remedy?

A. Buy pipe mounting straps, available at hardware stores. Strap the pipes securely to the joists or other surfaces. The pipes will not be noisy if securely held.

Q. Is there a way to make the appearance of water pipes less objectionable in basement rooms?

A. The most economical remedy is to paint the pipes using a color that blends with the ceiling or wall colors.

Q. Is a rubbed linseed oil finish recommended for walnut or mahogany?

A. This finish makes beautiful and light with only a minimum of surfaces on these woods. Careful maintenance. Impervious to condensation or moisture damage. repeated applications of the oil the shining glass blocks can be cleaned easily with a damp cloth.

More Families Can Afford Vacation Home

Higher income levels are increasing the number of families who can afford a second home for leisure living. One family in 12 had an income of $10,000 or more a decade ago, but one in eight families earned that much in 1957. By 1970, according to U. S. Department of Commerce, one family in four will have an income of $10,000 or better.

Glass Walls Used For Shower Stalls

Glass block sidewalls in shower stalls offer a maximum of privacy and light with only a minimum of maintenance. Impervious to condensation or moisture damage, repeated applications of the oil the shining glass blocks can be cleaned easily with a damp cloth.

Friendly Ranch Has Warmth

BY DAVID L. BOWEN

In a lot of ways, houses are like people. Some are haphazard and hard to keep on an even keel. Some have a forbidding look on the outside and a complete lack of character inside. Others have the kind of personality that makes friends at once, and the knack for organization that keeps things operating smoothly under any circumstances.

The proud claim of House of the Week B-58 is that it has solid character, pleasing personality and good organization. It was designed carefully by Architect Lester Cohen to provide large ranch luxury in the modest confines of 1,129 sq. ft.

Special Features

Among the features imparting B-58's special personality:

1. A front-to-rear living room completely set off from the main traffic route and illuminated by large windows at both ends.
2. A compact reception foyer solving circulation problems.
3. A portico porch at the front, attractive from the street and serving an important practical function by providing a cover for the route from house to garage.
4. A well-isolated bedroom section served by an impressively long bedroom hallway.

The attractive exterior lines are enhanced by the warm combination of fieldstone, vertical siding and wooden shingles. Dimensions are 58' 6" in width, including one-car garage, by 26' in depth.

A modern free-standing fireplace separates the living room from the dining room, which joins it in a rough L-shape. A louvered partition extends out from the kitchen to separate dining room and foyer. A window wall of sliding glass doors leads to the rear terrace.

An indoor casual room could be made of the third bedroom in B-58 Statistics.

B-58 Statistics

This modest ranch has three bedrooms, L-shaped living and dining rooms, efficient kitchen and a compact entry foyer.

The living area totals 1,129 sq. ft., not including the attached garage. Overall dimensions are 58' 6" by 26'.

Full basement offers the opportunity for development of a downstairs playroom.

a two-bedroom family. Plenty of space for a future playroom is available in the basement.

L-Shaped Kitchen

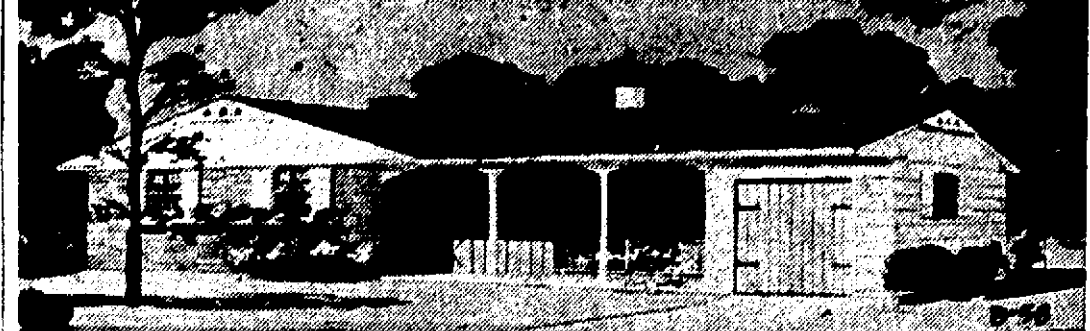

Kitchen utilities are laid out in a practical L-shape, leaving room for a dinette next to the window overlooking the terrace. While it is completely out of sight from the front door, the kitchen actually is only a few steps away from the main entrance.

Each of the three bedrooms has cross ventilation and good wall space for furniture placement. There is a large family bathroom with a vanity washbasin and a linen closet just outside the door.

Counting the front coat closet and the linen closet, there are six big storage compartments in B-58. A scuttle in the bedroom hall gives access to attic storage. The stairway to the basement is conveniently located in the hall near the kitchen and bedrooms and is easy to get to from the front door without tramping through any living area.

An unusual optional should appeal to the gardening hobbyist in every family: behind the garage, with entry from garage and rear yard, Architect Cohen suggests a small greenhouse. Tender outdoor plants can winter here, or seeds germinate for spring planting.

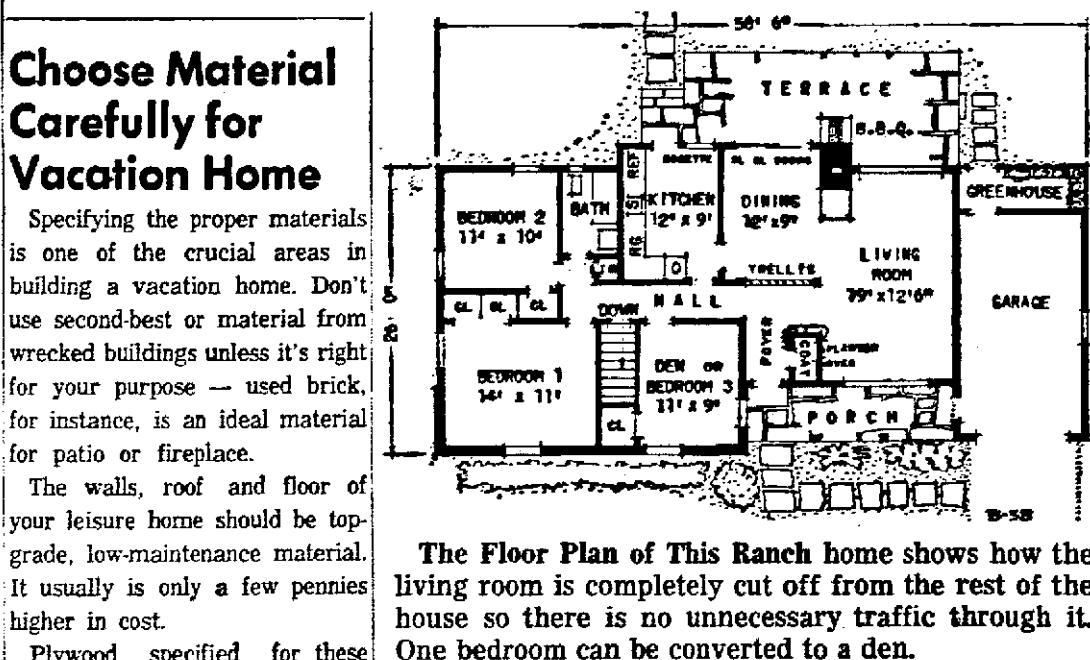

For those not inclined to garden on that scale, the space would be ideal for an outdoor tool and toy shed.

Efficiency and Charm are the keystones of this modern ranch home, both inside and outside. Its pleasing design covers only 1,129 square feet of living space. An optional feature is a greenhouse behind the garage for homeowners with green thumbs.

Choose Material Carefully for Vacation Home

Specifying the proper materials is one of the crucial areas in building a vacation home. Don't use second-best or material from wrecked buildings unless it's right for your purpose — used brick, for instance, is an ideal material for patio or fireplace.

The walls, roof and floor of your leisure home should be top-grade, low-maintenance material. It usually is only a few pennies higher in cost.

Plywood specified for these areas always should be exterior type. This material is made with marine glue — the same waterproof variety used in panels for boat-building. Interior type panels will not withstand repeated or prolonged exposure to moisture.

NABH to Promote Low Cost Homes

WASHINGTON — E. J. Burke, Jr., president of the National Association of Home Builders, has announced a program to spur the production of homes for lower income families in 1961.

He said the NABH will sponsor low-priced housing competition among its 350 local associations with awards for the best model or demonstration homes and for developing a program to promote the building of low-priced homes in quantity in their localities.

Burke also announced NABH support for speedy Congressional action on low-priced housing requests made in President Kennedy's housing message to Congress.

All NABH members are invited to submit directly to him cost-cutting suggestions, blueprints for good, low-cost homes and recommendations for increasing production of such housing. These "trade secrets" will be compiled in a booklet to be distributed to all builders interested in the low-cost housing field.

As part of the low-priced housing competition, Burke asked all local associations of the NABH to name a task force to take charge of the program locally. He invited presidents of local chapters to report to him directly on how the competition is shaping up in their areas.

Observers Planned For Realtor Week

Appleton Board of Realtors is making preliminary plans to observe Realtor Week, April 23 to 29, Joseph DeNoble, president announced.

Dale Bystrom has been named chairman of a committee to plan events, in cooperation with civic and business leaders.

About 600 real estate boards across the country are expected to participate in the observance of this special week, sponsored annually by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The national association was founded in 1908 with a code of ethics to which every member is pledged. The code defines the rules of conduct that are to govern realtors in their relations with clients, the public and other realtors.

Financing for Vacation Home Easier to Get

$5,000 to $7,000 Loans Average Size; With 7 Years to Pay

Financing was one of the big stumbling blocks in the way of a really big boom in vacation homes until recently.

The Federal Housing Authority will not insure mortgage loans for vacation cabins, except in rare instances, and most conventional lending institutions, traditionally conservative, shied away from making loans on property far from urban centers.

Three types of financing are becoming generally available now, however.

The most widely available is through mortgage discount firms. These agencies make what amounts to mortgage loans up to $5,000 or $7,000 for periods ranging up to seven years.

In many cases, this type of loan can be arranged through lumber dealers who sell cabin materials or builders of leisure homes.

Starting with a savings and loan association in Salt Lake City, more loans are being made available through this type of financial institution. These are almost all of the unsecured personal type.

A conventional mortgage loan, first offered 10 years ago by a Boston bank, is beginning to gain in popularity with commercial banks.

Best advice for a potential leisure home buyer, according to material supplier association: Make a few phone calls to local lending institutions. If they don't offer the kind of loan you need, they probably will be able to refer you to an organization that does.

In nearly all cases, a loan requirement is clear title to your lot. The loan is made on the cabin alone.

Choose Varnish for Specific Projects

Remember that stains color wood but do not protect it from wear and liquids. A commonly used protective coating for stained furniture or floors is varnish, which dries hard and comes in a variety of sheens. Ask your dealer's advice before buying varnish. A varnish meant for furniture will not usually stand up under the wear and tear to which floors are subjected.

Split-Level Gardening Can Add Beauty

Barren Slopes Near Hillside Homes Need Not Become Eyesores

BY EDNA KING MANDEVILLE
Garden Writer

With the ever-growing popularity of split-level homes, many gardeners find themselves in picturesque settings marred by barren slopes and banks.

While the thought of a split level garden may occur to home owners, many dismiss it from mind as "too much work."

Certainly it is more work than planting ordinary ground cover, but the added effort is well worth while considering the splendid individuality that so often results—a delight to the gardener and his neighbors.

If a bank is more than five feet high, the most effective treatment is to split it into various levels, each one having about three and one-half feet of drop. (Bear in mind that this is not the distance between levels but rather a measure of height between them.)

The base of the terrace created by each level is treated in the same manner as a sloping rock garden, followed by a level path some three or more feet wide, followed by a second sloping terrace, and so on.

Gravel Paths

The paths between slopes should be filled with fine gravel or covered with grass, then edged with retaining stones. A bird bath rimmed with alternate plantings of Jubilee Gem Bachelor's Button and Snow Cloth Alyssum can be used for interest.

Another point of interest could be a bird feeding station placed next to a white birch, or perhaps an inviting garden bench.

It seems almost essential, or at least advisable, to build garden steps for easy access from one level to another. Construction of the steps should blend with the surroundings. Roughly squared logs held in place with stakes are perfect for a rustic setting, while more precise arrangements would probably call for stone or concrete steps.

The area near the steps should be given careful attention, since it will be brought under closer observation. At the top of the steps, on each side, a shrub planting with Juniper Horizontalis (Andorra Juniper) is a quite adaptable bit of formality.

Color Accent

For color accent, consider the new Dwarf Red Barberry (Crimson Pygmy), which grows six to eight inches high. Though a slow grower, it will spread fifteen to twenty-four inches across when fully mature. Best leaf color is obtained when grown in full sun.

Other attractive plantings for this step area can be obtained with tub plants of Geraniums and Coleus. To keep the spot picture-pretty all season long, use Arabis, Snow-In-Summer, Maiden Pinks, Dwarf Sweet William, Cupid Marigolds, and Blue Bells of California.

The rock gardens themselves may be made of either boulders or flat field stone, with the heavier stones at the bottom.

All Season Blooms

Suitable flower varieties for the rock garden are almost limitless. A combination of varieties for all season bloom is important. Here are a few: Spring Aubretia, Arabis, Alyssum Saxatile, Forget-Me-Not, Crocuses, Dwarf Tulips, Daffodils; summer, Snow-In-Summer (which looks well either in or out of bloom), Maiden Pinks, Dianthus, Alyssum Royal Carpet, garden, Pachysandra, Snow-In-Bachelor's Button, Jubilee Gem, Blue Bells of California, Dwarf Marigolds (cupid, spray, and yellow pygmy), Portulaca. Snapdragons provide protection with empty Black-eyed Susan Vine, Sweet William (dwarf and wee willie; fall, and bottom have been removed), Pompon Aster, Dwarf Marigolds, St. John's Fire, Salvia, Celosia once the plants are established.

The Fox Valley Chapter of the Society of Residential Appraisers has elected new officers for the coming year. Pictured are Raymond Pederson, Neenah, a new director; C. F. Williams, Neenah, secretary-treasurer, and Freeland Wyrzt, Fond du Lac, president. The new vice president is Bruce Andrews, Appleton, who was not present at the meeting in the Appleton Elks Club.

Poor Absorption of Fats Basic Feature of Sprue

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is sprue? My husband has been told that he has it. He has had all the tests including X-rays, but nothing shows up except a lack of hydrochloric acid. — E.M."

"My sister-in-law, in her early 40's, has been diagnosed as having a disease which sounds like sprue. Isn't it a form of anemia? — B.P."

Common in the tropics, sprue is one of those diseases which, in this area, is neither common nor unknown. It is called "non-tropical sprue" in the temperate zones, in adults or "celiac disease" in children.

It's one of a group of disorders of which the essential feature is poor absorption of fats and some forms of starches.

The cause is possibly some form of infection or there may be a group of causes. Anyway, there are changes in the membrane of the small bowel which apparently interfere with the usual absorption of certain food elements.

Some of the signs resemble those of pernicious anemia, yet the disease itself is quite different. X-rays can distinguish the difference by comparing the bowel pattern.

In general, sprue can result in such things as diarrhea with large, frothy, fatty stools and weight loss, weakness, sore tongue, anemia.

Allergy More Common
When readers write and ask, "Why do I have a sore tongue?" my answer could be, "Possibly sprue!" But I know from experience that some simpler answer, flame or fire, and cushion type mums.

Beneath the paths, Heavenly Blue Morning Glories would make useful ground cover. If additional cover is needed before beginning the next level or rock thus, Alyssum Royal Carpet, garden, Pachysandra, Snow-In-Bachelor's Button, Jubilee Gem, Blue Bells of California, Dwarf Marigolds (cupid, spray, and yellow pygmy), Portulaca. Snapdragons provide protection with empty Black-eyed Susan Vine, Sweet William (dwarf and wee willie; fall, and bottom have been removed), Pompon Aster, Dwarf Marigolds, St. John's Fire, Salvia, Celosia once the plants are established.

like allergy, is going to be correct much more frequently. This is another of the instances in which one symptom doesn't tell the story. From a single symptom, many, or at least several, answers are possible. You have to dig down and find a combination of facts to get the answer.

Same with your car. "Why is it lousy on hills?" The answer could be clogged gas line, faulty carburetor, defective spark, draggy brakes, worn piston rings, slipping clutch or other things that I don't know but a mechanic does!

For sprue, treatment revolves around a diet low in fats and low in some carbohydrates such as gluten, although certain other foods such as meats, bananas, strawberries, etc., are well tolerated.

The body may be low in Vitamin A, and this can be administered in capsule or comparable form.

Sprue is not a disease that comes on suddenly as a rule, and it can't be cured quickly. Time and patience are required. But after a matter of months, other foods may be added to the diet. The patient should follow orders carefully, because relapses are not uncommon.

Consult Doctor
"Dear Dr. Molner: I am a man of 82 with a very large hernia. I would like to have an operation but I am afraid because of my age. What do you think about it? — D.C."

Ten or 20 years ago there was considerable reluctance to operate on people your age. The last few years have proved that, with modern methods, age is no barrier to successful surgery. People older than you have had much more serious operations and come through beautifully. For your particular case, if your doctor says to have the operation, have it. If he says no, then don't.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Does saccharin have any decaying effect on the teeth? — R.H."

No.

Acne is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation or if you have children who are, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Acne — The Teenage Problem." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

$300 Damage in 2-Car Crash

KAUKAUNA — More than $300 damage resulted to two cars about 6:40 a.m. Thursday when an auto driven by Curtis Meulemans, 19 Wrightstown, skidded on the wet street and struck the parked car of Mrs. Norma Massey, 212 Hendricks St., Kaukauna.

Meulemans told police he was traveling north on Hendricks, thinking it was a through street. When he saw the dead end barricade, he applied his brakes and skidded into the parked car, he said.

Neenah Man Acquitted Of Fishing Charge

OSHKOSH — Dale Wahlers, 46, route 2, Neenah, was acquitted of fishing with three lines by Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane Thursday after trial. He was arrested on Lake Poygan in the Town of Wolf River by conservation wardens Jan. 10 and pleaded innocent Jan. 17.

Neenah Development

There are 10 areas of development in Neenah, and about five more outside the city.

On the southeast edge are the Edgewood Plat, Charlerose Plat, Glen Ayre Park and Glen Ayre Meadows. Also on the southeast side, but further into the city is the recently opened Kessler Plat, running between Reed and Hig-

Twin Cities Lots Increase

BY REINY WESSING
Post-Crescent Building Editor

Available home sites in the Neenah-Menasha area are in much better supply today than they were several years ago.

For a number of years the two cities stood still as far as annexations were concerned. But that situation has been remedied, and during the last two or three years about 300 acres have been annexed.

Also, there are numerous new areas developing outside both communities, which probably will be annexed someday.

In total, there are 22 areas in and around the Twin Cities where home building is now in progress — 16 in the cities and six outside.

Lake Shore Sites

In addition to these formal plats and subdivisions there is considerable building in unplatted, rural areas, particularly between U. S. 41 and the west shore of Little Lake Buttes des Morts. It is conceivable that someday the city of Neenah will be annexing territory in this finger of land between the highway and the lake.

The Town of Menasha, mostly to the north of Menasha, is growing extremely fast. There are six subdivision developments in Menasha, all on the northern edge of the city. The largest are the Clovis Park Subdivision and Grove Estates Addition, bounded by the north city limits, Ninth Street, State 47 and Woodland Drive.

To the northwest are the Paul Nofke Plat, North Acres, Maplewood Heights and First Addition to Maplewood Heights. Generally, all four areas are between Appleton and Manitowoc Streets and run from Ninth Street to the north city limits.

The one large area of development east of the city, in the Town of Menasha, is Homestead Acres on the old Manitowoc Road.

Place Plants Correctly For Beautiful Growth

There's a right place for every plant. If planted right in the first place and if given reasonable care, it will grow handsomely, says the American Association of Nurserymen.

What are some of the reasons the home owner may have a plant property somewhere. Beside a doorway, however, in a very few years it has to be removed because it grows too fast and too large. In the foundation planting, low-growing plants like the yew and juniper are preferred.

It's the same way with flowering shrubs and trees. Some are dwarf enough to be planted in the foundation planting, but others must be planted at various locations on the property. A taller shrub or low-growing tree may be used only at the corners of the house, in order to frame it from the street, blend it into the landscape.

Before planting any tree or shrub it is best to inquire from your nurseryman if the location is right, unless you know exactly what you are doing.

Right Soil Needed
3. The right plant in the right kind of soil provides healthy growth. Most plants will thrive in good loam. If there are any doubts about the soil being fertile, mix peat moss and a handful or two of fertilizer in the planting soil. Peat moss is especially effective in heavy clay, or sandy soils.

There are plants which require acid soil in order to do well. This includes the azaleas, viburnums, hollies and similar plants. Roses will grow well in a variety of soils. If the soil is heavily alkaline it requires acid to grow azaleas, for example. Outdoor Toys

Plan Children's Play Area for This Summer

BY GEORGE E. CREED
Landscape Architect

This is a good time to start planning revisions in home landscape to meet changing needs.

If, for instance, children have reached the point where they can safely use outdoor play equipment there are many things that can be done indoors, to provide them with such things.

Small children, of course, are always fascinated by the standard apparatus such as swings and slides and these are readily obtainable at most department stores. In addition to the commonplace types, there are many devices that can be made or bought for your children's enjoyment.

With a few logs from which the bark has been stripped, two bottle caps, a scrap of leather and a couple of short lengths of rope, a wooden horse can be made, such as that shown in Sketch A. Only a hammer, saw, mallet and wood chisel are needed. The horse's legs are fitted into holes gouged out of the body. The neck, body and head are joined in similar fashion. To prevent the horse from toppling the legs should be firmly anchored in the ground to a depth of a foot or so.

Pipe Crawl
A sewer pipe is a simple piece of equipment that small children delight in crawling through and Dutch Elm disease, planting this over. It is easily obtainable at small cost at any building material store. The only additional work involved besides placing the pipe where it is wanted is to cut wooden wedges with which to anchor it securely in place.

Sketch C illustrates an easily-constructed framework that will provide entertainment for many years. Children enjoy climbing on it. Throw an old blanket over it and it becomes a tent. Later, as children grow, cover the framework with canvas and make a real tent for them.

In planning a play area, place it as close to the house as possible, preferably in a location that is easy to observe and quickly reached in case of emergency.

Landscape Questions
Q. Is the ginkgo tree fast-growing?
A. No, it is relatively slow-growing, averaging about a foot a year.
Q. Do you recommend planting American Elms?
A. No. With the spread of Dutch Elm disease, planting this tree is a gamble at best.

Sharing a cozy conversation on the telephone in a scene from the Senior class play at Winneconne High School are students Sue Schmoker and Robert Helgeson. "Barry's Etchings," in which this pair furnish the romantic interest, will be presented at 8 p. m. tonight at the high school.

Predicts Missile to Destroy Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Navy specialist says the service could develop within 18 months a missile to destroy an orbiting satellite.

Capt. Robert F. Freitag, astronautics officer of the Bureau of Naval Weapons, made the statement in testimony before the House Space Committee Feb. 20. This was before Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara gave the Air Force primary responsibility for military space research and development.

"I talk about a minimum-energy missile, that is, a missile which is launched vertically with just enough power to arrive at the altitude of the satellite at zero velocity," he testified.

"At that point it can hover and wait for the satellite to come and then by terminal guidance, seek out the satellite and kill it with some mechanism."

To Attend Dinner

MADISON (AP)—All of Wisconsin's Republican representatives and Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Chippewa Falls, will attend the state GOP fund raising dinner in Madison Monday, Party Chairman Claude Jasper said today.

Other participants will include the state's 20 Republican state senators and 55 assemblymen, Jasper added.

Charlie Looks at Oshkosh, Its Contribution to the Civil War

CHARLES HOUSE

OSHKOSH — It is very good to take a long, lingering backward look at our young nation and its Civil War, as we are doing during this 100th anniversary year. But too many of us think in terms of battles and maneuvers and political overtones and the purposes of leaders.

It is better that we think in terms of people. For this purpose, let us go to Oshkosh and watch the development of a single company, the first to leave that community. Let us watch the growth of the war spirit, the flush of patriotism.

Let us then follow the little company through its experiences and see what happened to each man:

In Oshkosh, then a minor community of fewer than 10,000 people, the date was April 19, 1861. . . . The community held the greatest demonstration ever to be seen in Oshkosh. There were speeches and there were flags and there was singing of the Star-Spangled Banner and there was an orchestra and a band to play stirring marching music. Oshkosh was enflamed.

It was like hundreds and hundreds of other communities, it was Oshkosh. The demonstration stirred the blood of the young men. Oshkosh had, in effect, declared war upon the "traitors of the South."

Three days later exactly 99 men, most of them young, had volunteered. At their head was a former attorney general of Wisconsin, Gabriel Bouck. He chose for his aide and first lieutenant one John Hancock, and the third in command was H. B. Jackson.

message from the governor. The little group of 99 men had been "accepted" and should be prepared to move to a point of rendezvous "at a moment's notice."

Oshkosh was equal to this. There was another great meeting. At 9 a.m., the volunteers and the citizens gathered for the promised ceremonies. A German-American band blared out martial music; a chorus sang, and Weidner's orchestra played "Hail Columbia" and "Red White and Blue."

A pretty girl was presented to the volunteers and the audience. She was Miss Carrie Weed. Her brother, Henry Weed was one of the volunteers.

Neither Miss Weed nor young Henry could know that he would be back home in a year. What is to happen to him is this. He would be captured after a dreadful rout by the Confederate forces during the first battle of Bull Run. He would be taken as a prisoner to the infamous Libby prison in Richmond.

Crippled by Guard He would be insolent to a Confederate guard and he would be horribly crippled by that guard. He would be traded for a Confederate prisoner and then discharged on April 22, 1862. He would still be young at the time of his death.

But Miss Weed did not know this. She spoke: "Gentlemen: It is with mingled feelings of sadness and joy that we meet you today. Sadness that our beloved country should be so rent by treason as to make parting with friends necessary; joy that, at the first call, so many bravely volunteer to defend what is dear to all of us — our Constitution and Union."

"Our hopes and our prayers go forth with you, and may you be incited to go forth earnestly and with dependence upon Him who only can reward your effort and save our country."

"We now, in behalf of the ladies, present to you this flag of our Union, firmly believing that it will never be disgraced by you and fervently hoping that it may ever remain the proud emblem of an undivided, free, and happy people."

There was applause and cheers as Miss Weed turned the pretty home-made flag of silk over to Gabe Bouck. He thanked her and the ladies on behalf of his company, and then he said:

Meaning of Flag "It is the flag under which most of us were born, the flag under which most of us have received protection from (the time of) our birth, the flag to which we have all sworn allegiance. And, whether born under its protecting folds or not, it is a flag which we shall always defend to the utmost of our ability."

"To those who have friends and relatives among these volunteers, I wish to give the assurance that I shall not only be their commander in the field, but everywhere and at all times, especially in time of sickness and casualty, I shall be their personal friend."

Bouck, however, would not be able to keep his promise for long. He would be transferred advanced in rank and would ultimately resign and become a distinguished Wisconsin attorney.

There were cheers, however. And then the little ragamuffin company marched off while Ed Finney and Hiram Ming beat the drums and William Taylor played the fife.

Ed Finney would be transferred in great honor to a regimental band of the great Iron Brigade newcomer to leading film roles. Ming would serve out his full term for his part in the picture. And he be mustered out, unhurt, on other of the film's stars, Rachael June 28, 1864. But he would see Roberts, was chosen best British blood and death and suffering at actress.

and the rate of the local property taxes raised sufficiently to replace the loss."

Sen. Lynn Stalbaum, D-Racine, a committee member told Leonard the governor's tax revision commission had discussed a lower tax rate on homes and shied from the proposal because of the greater burden it would place on farms and industrial property.

Strong objections were raised to a proposed constitutional amendment, sponsored by Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Milwaukee, to allow the legislature to set a lower tax rate on homes.

The proposal would bring no lasting reductions in home real estate taxes, said Mrs. C. W. Thremon of Middleton, representing the Wisconsin League of Women Voters. She told the Senate Labor, Taxation, Insurance and Banking Committee:

"It would surely benefit no one to enact a homestead exemption and the rate of the local property taxes raised sufficiently to replace the loss."

Objections Heard On Cutting State Property Taxes

MADISON (AP)—Cutting property taxes on homes would upset local tax bases and discriminate against rural and industrial property, a legislative committee was told Wednesday.

Protect Shoes

When doing any handyman work or painting, pull an old pair of socks over your shoes to protect them. If you have to snip a button off a garment, be careful not to cut the fabric. The best precaution is to shield the fabric by sliding the teeth of a comb between the fabric and the button.

Learning to Drive Vital in Our World

Today's Etiquette

FAMILY SQUABBLE
A first cousin of mine was given a bridal shower. An invitation was addressed just to my mother although my sister and I are over 21. When mother arrived at the party, she was asked why my sister and I did not come too. Mother explained that we were not invited. She was told that it was a mistake and that we should have gone anyway. This is causing family friction and I would appreciate it if you would straighten this matter out.

Louise Davis Answers:
You were correct by not attending the shower. If the hostess wanted you, she should have included the three names on the envelope. Therefore the mistake was not yours or your mother's. We can't be mind-readers when we receive invitations. The names should be specifically listed.

UNGRATEFUL BOY
Is there a specific age when one should stop giving presents to nephews and nieces. We have been giving birthday gifts to our nephew and never once has he said thank you unless his mother told him to do it. Last year we gave him $40 for a Bar Mitzvah present and got no thank you. There will be another birthday soon. My husband says to forget it, but I hate to let the boy down. Should I go behind my husband's back and give something anyway?

Louise Davis Answers:
No. You are obviously irked at an ungrateful boy. Perhaps a gift omission will bring him up short. Your husband is using wisdom and subtle discipline by telling you to do nothing. It would be pretty sneaky to defy him.

protesting taxpayer was present. Once more the board heard the familiar, "Cut out the frills and lessen the taxes. What has a high school got to do with teaching boys to drive a car? They can learn that at home."

"Maybe they could. Children used to learn a great many useful things at home but that was when their fathers and mothers were there to teach them. This is not the case today. And whose fault is that? Not the children's, nor the board's."

Essential to Living
Cars and trucks are essential to today's living. Business depends on them, and so do the people who work in those businesses. It is fair to suppose then that boys and girls will, in their turn, use the cars and drive the trucks. Parents are not, as a usual thing, good teachers of special subjects like driving cars. They are too impatient. Also they, not being 100 per cent perfect on the road, are likely to pass on their mistakes to the children. The best way to teach this subject is to do it in the high school at the time the boys and girls are ready for it, eager to get at it.

When we know that a great proportion of road accidents are caused by youths under 20, isn't it a matter of common sense to teach them correct road manners? Statistics tell that the drivers who had a course in driving in school have few accidents. The accidents were caused by many of those who had no such instruction.

No Excuse
I have every sympathy with the taxpayers. I'm one too and I know. I can see that some modern schools are too costly for our community to support. The building meant more to the ones responsible for it than the teachers who would put life and purpose into it. No money was left to pay them adequately. But that is no excuse for depriving the children further. They need to know about cars, what makes them run, how to get the best use out of them, how to make simple repairs, and above all, how to manage them on the road. Sound teaching such as the school can give will cut down the number of deaths on the road. Who isn't willing to pay his share for that?

Here's to You, MISS TEEN

a guide to good grooming and poise

Makeups and Coverups
On the level now, when do you think a girl is old enough to use cosmetics? The question shatters many a teen and her parents, too. There is a code of timing that has been generally approved by all parties, as it makes good sense and reflects good taste. Consequently, when you accept it gracefully, objections to make-up disappear like magic. If others in her group are doing so, a girl of 13 or 14 may be permitted a moderate amount of powder and a pale lipstick for special occasions. She must not wear either to school unless it is the practice of the majority of her class. A frank use of cosmetics comes in the 16th year. But even at this advanced stage, moderate

Fourth of Series

tion governs favorable reaction. At any age, you would seem too young for cosmetics were you to wear them before you became skilled in their use. Many girls misinterpret the true purpose of make-up. They try to change their basic type with it—to look brunette when blonde, and vice versa, or a movie queen when sweet 16. Although they take enormous pains, the outcome is totally unconvincing. Still another group, equally misguided, carelessly slaps make-up on. And the result is pure tackiness, like chipped nail polish. No, make-up, your make-up is not intended for, nor does it lend itself to, any sort of theatrics. It has but one purpose, and that is to heighten your natural good looks. To seem the work of nature's hand, cosmetics first must complement your individual skin color and type. Next, they must be applied so cleverly that, with the exception of lipstick, nobody can tell you use the stuff.

How to Proceed

You always should apply a base before applying powder. By smoothing—surfacing the skin and gripping powder, a base gives a lasting finish. A colorless, transparent base is the one for younger teens. If your skin is normal or dry, baby lotion or a nongreasy cream will suffice. An oily skin requires a treatment base. While performing the already mentioned services, it also helps counteract oiliness. When you've reached 16 you may use either a colorless or a tinted base, whichever you prefer. 1. Analyze your skin tone: Is it olive, golden, creamy, ivory, bluish white, or pink? How deep—light or dark—is it? If in doubt, place a slip of dead-white paper on the inside of your wrist. A comparison between the color of your skin and the paper answers the question. 2. Select a base that matches your skin coloring in both tone and depth.

Select Your Powder

After the complications of choosing a base, powder selection is a breeze. You've got it, when a powder matches your skin color or any tinted base you may wear. Whether you use loose or pressed powder is of little importance. What matters is that it fluffs on and gives a luminous effect. For a deft make-up, you require

Civic League Tells Topic Of Program

WINNECONNE — Miss Mae Sange will tell "The Wild Rose Story" at the dinner meeting of the Civic League at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the assembly room of the Village Hall. Miss Sange's club received the Community Achievement Award which is presented by the Federation of Women's Clubs for outstanding work in community achievement. Another speaker will be Clifford Lange of the extension department of the Oshkosh Public Library, who will talk on National Book Week April 16-19 and the bookmobile service and how it may be obtained for a two year experimental period. Chairman of the hostess committee is Mrs. J. J. Grimes, assisted by the Mes. Roy Baitinger, Richard Safford, Lawrence Campbell, Robert Reed, Clarence Mueller, Allan Arthur, Oscar Wentzel, Donald Knoke, Norbert O'Connor and Miss Marjorie Dowling.

Broil Burgers

Spread well-seasoned ground beef on split hamburger buns and broil. Make sure the beef is spread over the edges so they won't scorch. The meat will shrink a little during the broiling.

Apply Your Powder

3. Looking into your hand mirror, apply your powder. Take up a large amount of it on your puff—enough to cover your entire face. Repeated dips are what give splotchy effects. Now, with flicking motions, fluff on your powder in this order, left cheek, right cheek, forehead, jawline, under chin, nose. This done, remove the excess powder from your puff by patting it on a tissue. Then remove the excess from your face with your puff. Wield it in quick, downward strokes from hairline to base of throat. 4. Start your lipstick application. Begin by saturating your lipstick brush with lipstick. Now blot your lips with tissue. Next outline your lips with the tip of the brush. Hold it as you do a pencil, and to keep it steady, place your little finger firmly against your chin. Work first on the upper lip, from the left corner to the center and then from the right corner to the center. Similarly outline your lower lip. When satisfied with your outline, and not before, fill it in with the flat of your brush. 5. Brush-groom your eyebrows and lashes. This is necessary to remove those flecks of powder.

For a Birthmark

A birthmark can be cloaked with a combination of three cosmetics—covermark cream, blender, and powder.

Bushy Eyebrows

Overthick, unruly brows add no "come-hither" whatever to the feminine face and should be tamed. Simply apply stick-form hair wax to your brows and with your eyebrow brush "beat" the strands into submission.

Invisible Brows

Some eyebrows and lashes are so light as to appear nonexistent. This can be overcome with mascara.

Stubby Lashes

Apply Vaseline jelly to stubby lashes at bedtime. It will soften them and prevent breakage.

Stubborn Lashes

The remedy is an eyelash curler. The efficient type works on the scissors principle.

Lackluster Eyes

Do you get enough sleep and fresh air? Have your eyes checked regularly? Read in a good light? Wear sunglasses to shut out glare? You do, and your eyes will shimmer like twin stars! In case you wonder about the sparkle in a box of eye shadow, there isn't any. That cosmetic has no place in your kit. But definitely!

Wife Counts Pennies While Hubby Supports Phone Firm

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN: My husband is one of those reckless spenders who doesn't think any more of a dime than his right eye. He carries his money in a change purse that snaps, hooks, zips and folds. I must account for every nickel I spend and heaven help me if my books don't balance. My complaint is this: Every few weeks he gets roaring drunk and heads for the long-distance telephone. He calls people he hardly knows at 2 and 4 a.m. — waking them up and sometimes getting hung up on. I can tell from his end of the conversation that some people don't even remember him. (His specialty is war-time buddies from 1944). Last month our phone bill was $58. It makes me furious to count pennies while he squanders a bankroll on a lot of drunken nonsense that he can't recall the next day. What can I do about it? — Telephone Broke

Landers

Dear Broke: It's too bad your phone isn't. Your husband has black-cord fever — a malady for which there is no known cure. If it's any consolation, please be aware that some husbands are similarly afflicted when they are sober. Save the monthly telephone bill receipts and when he goes off on a binge wave them before his blood-shot eyes. If he isn't too stoned, it may suggest something.

DEAR ANN: I'm a high school senior who has laughed my head off at some of the troubles you've printed but if you can help me I'll never laugh again. My problem is my steady girl. She thinks the front seat of my car is a sofa and that I'm a chair. If she isn't almost on my lap, her arms are wrapped around my neck. She distracts me and sometimes blocks my vision. After a few close calls I have pleaded with her to please let me drive the car with both hands. She says four eyes are better than two hands and that she is always on the lookout. If I have an accident I'll be grounded for life. My Dad is strict about the car (it's his) and I get it only so long as I have a perfect record. Help me, please. — Buzzy

Dear Buzzy: Tell that shy and retiring scrooper that 40 eyes are of no value unless the driver's two hands and two feet are free to act in a split second. Insist that she stay over on her side of the seat or tell her you'll have to travel by bus or by foot.

Needle Work

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In February we celebrated the birthday of a great American who freed the slaves. You could be a modern-day Lincoln and free the wives of retired men. Since my husband retired I haven't had a day to myself. He has no hobbies or interests. Although he belongs to several lodges "it's too much trouble" to attend meetings. He doesn't take part in civic activities although he's in good health and could do a great deal. He just sits and reads, watches TV, eats and sleeps. We are financially able to travel but he "doesn't care for it." Whenever I must go shopping he says "How soon will you be back?" I'll lose my mind if I don't get a little "apartness." Please suggest something.—Shackled

Dear Shackled: Freedom is never a gift. Fight for it. Resolve that you aren't going to sit in the house and vegetate just because your husband is a stick-in-the mud. Make your plans and go about your business. When he sees that you aren't going to stay home day and night and hold his hand he may get off his rusty-duty.

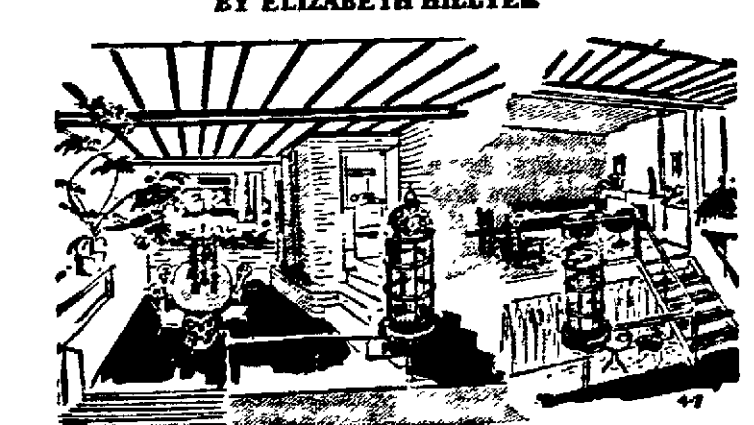

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Neckling and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1961)

Designing Woman

Sunny Transformation For An Old House

Although designer Harold M. Schwartz tore out almost the whole interior structure of an old house before he remodeled it, it was transformed as much with bright white paint and light as with new walls and furnishings. The house was the typically dark brownstone of the city, with windows on its narrow front and back walls only. All rooms are so bright and sunny in effect now that most of them seem more outdoors than in.

Actually, few walls were built to replace the old ones, and those which remained were stripped to the structural brick. Living room and dining room spaces have no wall barrier between them, and the back wall of the house is glass to bring the tiny garden beyond into the open sequence. What little separation of rooms there is is marked by changing levels. As the sketch shows, the dining room drops down from the living room, and stairs mount from it to the kitchen. With walls bright white everywhere, and a luminous ceiling which seems to filter daylight over the dining room, the living room looks as if it were on a terrace, and the dining room is convincingly like adjoining patio. No house could have changed its style of living more. Instead of dark primness, there's bright case. Even a narrow corridor seems to be a walk in the sun, under the illumined ceiling which stretches from one end to the other. But for all its sunny ways, the house has assured elegance, and is studded with fine paintings, rare antiques and distinguished furniture. Some of the furniture is old, as are the Belter chairs at the dining table and two Spanish chairs in the living room, and some are the choice works of top contemporary furniture designers, one of them Mr. Schwartz himself.

The Ailing House Use Solvent To Remove Wall Tiles

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
REMOVING WALL TILE

Q. How can I remove old plastic tile from a bathroom wall?

A. To remove the present plastic tile, consult the manufacturer or the tile dealer, for the particular solvent recommended for the adhesive used. Use this solvent to soften the adhesive, then pry the tile loose. This will keep damage to the surface underneath at a minimum.

PLASTERBOARD JOINTS

Q. My home is finished with plasterboard walls. During the winter, most of the joints have opened up. Is there anything I can do to repair them so they won't show?

A. The joints are probably opening because they were not properly reinforced when installed. Clean the joints. Then apply a sizing of thin varnish or shellac. Fill the joints with the special cement recommended by the plasterboard manufacturer, or use plastic paint, mixed thick.

Cover the filled joint with a special perforated paper, two inches by three inches wide, available at building supplies dealers, and press this into the cement. If perforated paper tape is not available, a strip of insect screening can be used instead.

CHIMNEY SEEPAGE

Q. We now have a gas boiler; before, we had a hot-water furnace, burning coal or wood. Our trouble now is the brick chimney. This is lined with an eight-inch flue tile, exposed inside the house. The chimney is plastered and papered.

There is a brown, liquid substance oozing through the brick. The plaster and wallpaper have been removed but oozing continues. At the top of the chimney, on the outside, solid ice formed. When the ice disappeared, oozing continued inside the house, running through the second floor in the center of the house.

Is there a way to eliminate this brown liquid substance from seeping through?

A. When gas is used as a fuel, a special flue lining is necessary. Was this installed when the gas boiler was put in? Recommend consulting your local gas utility company about recommended flue lining in the chimney. Be sure this is an acid-resistant type.

Installing a draft hood will prevent downward air currents and help keep moisture from condensing in the chimney.

threat to declarer. Beware of setting up tricks for declarer in such situations.

When this hand was played in a recent match in England, one defense tried for the over-ruff and came a cropper. East took the first two heart tricks with the king and ace, and then led another heart to put his partner in over-ruffing position.

Declarer stepped up with the ace of trumps to shut West out. He then drew trumps with the king and queen, after which he could safely cash dummy's last heart to discard his losing diamond.

The rest was easy. Declarer led a club from dummy, giving up one club, winning one in his hand, and ruffing the other two in dummy. He lost two hearts and one club, making the contract.

Stops Discard

At the other table of the match, East saw the danger of setting up dummy's hearts. He won the first trick with the king of hearts and returned the three of hearts to give West an immediate ruff.

West returned a club to the ace, and East led another low heart. South could step up with a high trump to shut West out, but East still had the ace of hearts to top dummy's last heart. Dummy's suit thus provided no discards, and South had to lose a diamond with trick as well as the two hearts and a club.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

1. Brainy men make poor lovers.

True — False —

False. The popular idea seems to be that the egghead makes a poor lover. But objective studies, comparing men and women of superior intelligence with average persons, find that the two groups score identically on such items as sex adjustment and happiness of marriage. The implication seems to be that the big bean of movie and television fame makes no better lover than the college professor. This is one of the considerations outlined for you in our popular rating pamphlet, "How To Choose Someone To Marry." A copy is free, but please enclose a stamped, return envelope with your request to this column, in care of this newspaper.

2. After one glass of wine, the body is free of alcohol in: 30 minutes — 1 hour — 2 hours —

Two hours. A small glass of wine has about the same effects as two bottles of beer, or one highball or cocktail. The effects are usually limited to a slight change in feeling, depending upon the size of the person and how used he is to it. For a person not used to it, the effects may be great enough to affect his driving.

Dry Starched Clothes Separately

Clothes that have been starched should be dried in a separate load. This advice comes from home economists. After the dryer drum shape and not get shiny. If a is cooled, wipe it with a damp cloth; suit is required for dress-up wear to prevent a starch coat from building up in the gas dryer. This will prevent possible discolorations of clothing dried later.

trim his tax budget proposal, and thus risk the loss of substantial state revenues at a time of a heavy impending treasury deficit.

The effect of the committee action, which is almost sure to be backed by the legislature as a whole, is to give Gronouski substantially more than the $9,133,000 that had been recommended by the governor, and nearly as much as he had asked for his far-flung tax collection services. The department is now spending at the rate of less than $8,000,000 per biennium.

Build Staff

The income tax enforcement increase will allow Gronouski to build his staff of auditors and others to 370, instead of the 358 suggested by Nelson, and against 314 so employed today.

Only three members of the committee voted against the boost in the income tax staff. They were Sen. Dempsey, Hartland, and Assemblymen Bidwell, Portage and Kintz, Richland Center.

Sen. W. A. Draheim, chief Republican legislative spokesman as chairman of the committee, voted with the majority to set up the biggest and strongest state income tax collection arm the state has ever had. The income tax is the basic state revenue source. It yields about $200,000,000 a year from corporations and about 1,300,000 individuals. The extra staff will be devoted to personal income tax investigations and audits.

Public Pledge

Committee members said they acted because of Gronouski's public pledge that each additional income tax man would return in additional taxes collected many times his salary and expenses, and in fairness to those persons who are paying their taxes faithfully and honestly.

"The only people who can be against this are those who don't pay their taxes," Potter said. "I see that the department is getting after some of these fellows, but they are a couple of years late," he added.

Lorge also expressed skepticism about the efficiency of present income tax collections.

Poor Memories

"There seem to be a lot of poor memories when it comes to income tax returns," Lorge said. "Some people are wondering whether they have been too honest. Everybody should be subject to a tax audit," the Outagamie legislator said, pointing out that the staff heretofore has permitted only audits of samples of income taxpayers.

West Expects New Crises With Soviets is completely unacceptable to Britain and the United States. The directorate would be composed of one Soviet, one Western and one neutral representative who would make decisions by unanimous agreement.

Object to Veto

Macmillan and Kennedy agreed that the Western powers could never rely on an inspection system which was subject to a Soviet veto. Unless, as they hope, Soviet Premier Khrushchev will drop or drastically modify the directorate proposal, the nuclear test talks at Geneva would appear to be headed for a breakdown.

If the Geneva talks do fail, Kennedy will be faced with an almost immediate decision on whether to order a resumption of nuclear testing which has been suspended since the Geneva conference started 2½ years ago.

Blow to Disarmament

2. Since the test talks at Geneva have been regarded by the Western powers as a possible first step toward disarmament, a failure at Geneva would inevitably be considered as a blow to disarmament. The two leaders reviewed the disarmament outlook and reaffirmed their hope that the test talks would prove successful, despite the current gloomy prospect, and that disarmament negotiations now projected for midsummer would get off to a good start.

3. The chances of a new East-West confrontation over West Berlin were rated high, although Macmillan considered that Khrushchev may choose to exert primary pressure for Communist expansion in some of the underdeveloped countries in Africa and Asia. Both Kennedy and Macmillan agreed that Khrushchev's repeated statement that he wants a solution of the Berlin problem this year must be given very serious weight.

The President and prime minister reaffirmed their determination not to weaken the Western position in Berlin or to withdraw from any of their obligations to protect the West Berlin people against Communist threats and pressures.

Offer Withdrawn

They also were reported in general agreement that concessions offered the Soviet Union for a Berlin agreement in 1959 are now to be considered withdrawn since Moscow rejected them at the time.

Those concessions included a tentative offer to consider reducing the Allied garrison force of about 11,000 men in West Berlin.

4. With respect to Southeast Asia Kennedy and Macmillan expressed their hope that cease-fire negotiations which the British are conducting with the Soviet foreign office in Moscow will now be successful and produce a prompt truce in the civil war in Laos while a 14-nation conference meets to negotiate a more permanent settlement.

They apparently foresaw grave difficulties within the conference in achieving their agreed objective of unifying Laos and establishing it as a completely neutral country under a coalition government. The United States recognizes that the Communist Pathet Lao would almost certainly have to be given representation in such a government.

A more immediate concern, however, is increasing Communist military activity of the hit-and-run type in South Viet Nam. The two leaders agreed that consideration must be given to measures which might prevent a further breakdown of political conditions there. They noted that as a result of Communist raids more persons are being killed in South Viet Nam than in Laos.

5. Kennedy and Macmillan reaffirmed their determination to support U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld against attacks from the Soviet bloc countries and to resist all Soviet efforts to replace him with a three-man directorate. They evidently expect further Soviet efforts, perhaps at the General Assembly meeting next fall, to cripple the U.N. operation and to win acceptance of the directorate idea by more and more members of the world organization.

French Police Press Drive On Terrorists

chance either side would make a serious move before Tuesday to get talks started. French President Charles de Gaulle has scheduled a news conference for that day.

The hospital raid in suburban Montfermeil was one of the most violent episodes in the war between the FLN and MNA, conducted for 6½ years in Paris.

Six men in a taxi drove up to the hospital where Algerian victims of a recent FLN-MNA clash were in a surgical ward. Three of the raiders charged up to the third floor and killed a French policeman guarding the Algerians' room with his own machine gun.

Child, Parents Wounded

Bursting into the room, they killed Mohand Talba, believed to have been a member of the MNA, in his bed.

The gang then ran from room to room, spraying bullets. One of their victims was a French girl, Martine Petit, 7, wounded as she lay in bed. Also wounded were her father, sitting beside the bed, and her mother, who flung herself across the child.

The three gunmen then rushed to their waiting taxi, knocking out a ward attendant as they ran and beating a nurse with gun butts. In the yard, two policemen who tried to stop them were shot in the feet.

The attacks on the American offices in Algiers were the latest in a series of bombings blamed on diehard French colonists. The extremists apparently were angered that the U. S. Ambassador to Tunisia, Walter N. Walmsley Jr., held private talks Monday in Tunis with two FLN ministers.

A plastic bomb placed at the main door of the American consulate, blew down a stone and brick wall, tore the door from its hinges and brought the ceiling of the main corridor crashing down.

The consulate, on the third floor of a modern office building, was vacant at the time.

The fire attack on the U. S. Cultural Center, a regular target for extremist anti-American demonstrations, was unsuccessful. An oil-soaked bunch of rags was placed on a wooden window covering and set afire but the blaze was quickly put out.

Former Green Bay Lawyer Named to Claims Commission

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing today on the nomination of Lavern R. Dilweg, a lawyer with offices here and in Green Bay, Wis., to be a member of the foreign claims settlement commission.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., who conducted the hearing, said he knew of no opposition and told Dilweg "it doesn't look as if there will be any trouble with your confirmation." The committee is expected to act Monday.

Dilweg, a Democrat who served one term in Congress from Wisconsin's 8th District in 1943-45, was a football star at Marquette University in 1925 and later with the professional Green Bay Packers.

Businessman on Way to U. S. to Die of Cancer

MANILA (AP)—Robert McCann was flown to Clark Air Base today on his journey back to the United States to die after spending 10 years in a Red Chinese prison.

The 60-year-old former businessman from Pasadena, Calif., ravaged by cancer, was rushed to the U.S. air force hospital at the base north of Manila on arriving from Hong Kong. Arrangements for his flight on to the United States were not complete.

McCann's wife, who traveled 9,000 miles to Tientsin to plead with the Chinese Communists for her husband's release, said the doctors in Hong Kong had given her husband "only a few days to live."

Mrs. McCann told newsmen later she had no complaints about the treatment her husband received while a prisoner.

"He had especially good treatment during the past two years," she said. "Last June they took him on a trip to Peiping for one week to show him various developments. I would say he had extraordinarily good treatment in the last two years."

She said her husband received all the packages she sent him. McCann, she said, had been under treatment in a Tientsin Red Cross hospital only since March 10. She said the operation of the hospital appeared efficient to her.

Churchmen Agree on Aid Bill Talk

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—A formal discussion on the mounting controversy over including private schools in the federal aid to education program has been agreed upon by two church leaders, a Roman Catholic and a Lutheran.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Frederick G. Hochwalt, director of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said last night a discussion by a selected group of men and sponsored by "some great foundation" could eliminate some misunderstandings arising from the question.

Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffmann, director of information of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, agreed that such a discussion might clear the air, but disagreed that federal aid should be granted to private schools.

The seminar was proposed by Msgr. Hochwalt on a television program.

May Insist

At a news conference earlier yesterday, Msgr. Hochwalt indicated the Catholic church may insist on grants to private schools. He conceded such a stand might kill federal air legislation this year.

"We wouldn't be unhappy about it," he said, adding the delay would give his church time to gain more backing for its cause.

On the television program, Msgr. Hochwalt predicted that the congressional vote on President Kennedy's aid bill will be close, "a whisker or a feather on either side."

Dr. Hoffmann said federal assistance to parochial schools "would mean a major breakthrough against the policy of separation of church and state." He said nullification of that policy would be a tragedy.

'Guesswork' Hit in U. S. Health Programs

WASHINGTON (AP)—A senate study group said today there is too much guesswork and haphazard planning in the government's $4.1 billion-a-year health programs.

The government operations subcommittee headed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called for White House action to assure coordinated planning by the 20 or more departments and agencies now developing costly health and health research programs more or less independently.

The report, based on 2½ years of study, said this coordination is needed to avoid wasteful duplication and to assure that one program can benefit from information developed by others. It told of a hodge-podge of accounting and information procedures in the existing setup, but claimed improvements have resulted already from its work.

Minister, Wife Killed in Crash

MINNESOTA CITY, Minn. (AP)—The Rev. and Mrs. Harold N. Stoffel of La Crosse, Wis., were killed Thursday in a head-on collision near this southeastern Minnesota town. The Rev. Stoffel was pastor of the English Lutheran Church at La Crosse.

David Stoffel, 22, son of the La Crosse couple, and John Collidge, 46, St. Croix, Minn., driver of the second car, were injured and taken to a Winona, Minn. hospital.

Collidge has been in Winona on business and was returning home when the accident happened. The Stoffels had attended a pastor's meeting in Minneapolis and were enroute home.

Yellow Fever Epidemic Rumor in Ethiopia

GENEVA (AP)—The League of Red Cross Societies said today it has been informed several thousand persons have died of yellow fever in Ethiopia, but that no details of the epidemic have been supplied.

A league spokesman said the Ethiopian Red Cross Society sent an urgent appeal to the league for yellow fever vaccine. The appeal was signed by Maj. Omni Niskanen, Swedish secretary-general of the Ethiopian Red Cross in Addis Ababa. Niskanen reported the epidemic raging in the southern regions of Gamu-Gofa and Kaffa provinces, and moving north into the Ormo River area, all remote and difficult to reach.

The U. N. World Health Organization said it has no official report of a yellow fever epidemic in Ethiopia.

"Officially, we have only had a report of several cases in the southwestern province of Gamu-Gofa," a WHO spokesman said.

Peace Corps Official Has No Private Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—Edwin R. Bayley who heads the public information staff of the infant Peace Corps project says he not only is operating in pretty much of a bedlam thus far but doesn't even have a private office.

Bayley, 42, took over as the corps' director of public information after spending the previous 18 months as executive assistant to Gov. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin. He was the top political writer for the Milwaukee Journal before joining Nelson.

Bayley, a native of Appleton, is a graduate of Lawrence College and formerly worked for the Green Bay Press-Gazette.

Bayley works directly under R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, on a consultant basis. As soon as the Corps completes organization, Bayley expects to go on a regular salary at about $17,000 a year.

"We have been deluged with inquiries from the press, radio, TV, newsreels and such," Bayley said. "So far we have been able to do little other than answer queries."

"We were entirely unequipped for this flood. We are still operating on a skeleton basis on this pilot program."

President Kennedy, who put the Corps into operation with funds from the Mutual Security Program is expected to ask Congress to approve a permanent program.

Large Asks Minimum Fee To File Taxes

Bill Would Boost State Revenues $650,000 a Year

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A minimum personal income tax liability of $2 for all persons subject to the filing returns of the income tax law was asked today in a bill introduced by Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek.

Lorge explained that such a measure would boost state revenues by about $650,000 a year, because more than 300,000 persons required to file returns do not actually make a tax payment since their net taxable incomes are not taxable under the present rates.

But the processing and handling of such returns is costly and the $2 minimum payment requirement would offset such charges, he told the finance committee which introduced the measure at his request. Lorge is a member of the committee.

Persons who file and pay taxes on their incomes under the present rates would not pay the fee. Such a minimum tax, or a filing fee, has been discussed in the legislature. It may be enacted this year because of the looming deficit in the state treasury.

District Nurses Survey Members

A survey completed by the Appleton District Nurses association committee on nursing in national defense, in cooperation with Civil Defense officials, showed that 225 registered nurses in the district are interested in disaster preparation.

Nurses who requested being registered with the local Civil Defense office and taking a training course included 106 from Outagamie County, 102 from Winnebago County and 17 from Waupaca County.

Members of the committee conducting the survey are Miss Jean Bestler and Mrs. Leona Stapel, Appleton; Mrs. Lara Hauze, Neenah; Mrs. Gertrude Nagel, Kaukauna; and Mrs. Jeanne Reubold, Menasha.

Marathon Aims at Stronger Position

Snyder Notes More Competition, Increased Costs, Steady Prices

MENASHA — Marathon Division of American Can Co. last year aimed at a stronger competitive position by expanding facilities, installing new equipment and modernizing existing machinery, general manager Donald A. Snyder said.

American Can Co. last year had total sales of $1,058,994,165, compared to 1959 sales of $1,107,361,078, reported William C. Stolk, board chairman, and Roy J. Sund, president.

Earnings in 1960 were $35,382,413, compared to $40,890,769. The company's annual report said the lower sales and earnings reflect industry's general performance. Other factors, not to recur in 1961, are high start-up costs of new plants which limited sales and earnings.

Increased Competition
Snyder's prediction of a stronger position for Marathon this year noted that "because so many are eager to get into our type of business, one effect is that it has not been possible for us in recent years to increase our prices in line with our costs (yet) wages and salaries have regularly been increased."

Increased competition also has come from other materials, primarily foils and plastics, Snyder observed.

"With these various types of increased competition, our sales departments have been hard-pressed to maintain and increase our sales volume. Although volume has decreased in some of our product lines, we have been successful in developing increased sales in others despite all of this new competition. While 1960 sales were not as high as we had hoped for and planned, they were somewhat higher than in 1959," said

Speaker at Governor's Conference Tells Need for Attitudes, Action

BY BONNIE BARSTOW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — "We are daring to be different and I think the results will be beneficial," said Harry Hamilton Jr., University of Wisconsin graduate student in Madison presenting the youth's viewpoint at the seventh Governor's Conference on Children and Youth as it opened here this morning.

"We young people have looked at the world and have decided that we don't like many aspects of its behavior," he said.

Need Right Attitude
"We youth have so little experience that we don't know what can and can't be done," he said, "and we just may try one of the 'impossible' remedies and have it work."

Experience is a good teacher but experience often leads to conservatism, stagnation and decay," Hamilton said the only way to attain freedom and security is through a proper attitude.

Turning to the question of morals and ethics Hamilton said "something is wrong with the present code that preaches the dignity of the individual yet holds that certain classes of people are inherently more equal than others; a code that maintains peace only by preparing for war; a code that says everything having to do with sex is bad for youth while constantly confronting them with sex in its rawest form."

Calling for action as well as attitude, Hamilton pointed to the sit-in movement and response to the Court Clamps Down On Young Speeder

Youth Gets Jail Term, Fines, Revocation After Chase, Crash

A young Appleton driver who led police on a chase, then crashed into a tree Saturday night, felt the full wrath of the court today.

Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmieg said the boy's sentence was one of the stiffest he has ever imposed for a traffic violation.

Robert L. Barth, 18, 733 W. Spencer St., admitted six traffic charges. He was sentenced to six months in the Outagamie County Jail for driving after his license was expired and fined a total of $390. If he can't pay the fines he will serve an additional 124 days in jail. He hadn't paid the fines at noon today. His license was revoked for five years — a year on each count.

From Beer Bar
Outagamie County Patrolman Calvin Spice chased a car driven by Barth from a Freedom beer bar into Kaukauna at 102 miles an hour. Barth went through a roadblock in Kaukauna and through two intersections at high rates of speed, police said. The chase ended when Barth drove the car into a telephone pole on Lawe Street in Kaukauna. Robert's brother, Marvin, was a passenger in the vehicle. Both were taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital.

102 Miles an Hour
Besides driving after his license was revoked, Robert admitted failing to yield right-of-way to an emergency vehicle, going 75 m.p.h. through the intersection of State 96 and 53, speeding 90 m.p.h. through the intersection of U.S. 41 and State 55, failing to yield the right-of-way at an intersection in the Town of Freedom and speeding at 102 m.p.h. in the towns of Vandenberg and Freedom. A charge of displaying license plates not issued for the vehicle he was driving was dismissed on request of Outagamie County Corporation Counsel Raymond Dohr.

Barth was released from Outagamie County Jail March 23 after convictions last November for stealing license plates, gasoline and auto parts and for doing damage to property.

After these convictions he was given an undesirable discharge from the army.

Businessmen Urged To Develop Markets

Thilmany Leader Tells Kaukauna Chamber to Review Methods In Light of Changing Conditions

KAUKAUNA — "The markets are not small. The game is for big stakes. What you do with it will tell your future."

Guy E. McCorison, chairman of the board of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Company, made these observations to businessmen and their wives at the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner Thursday night.

McCorison's talk dealt mainly with retail selling and merchandising in Kaukauna. He urged his listeners to "work with other progressive merchants in the Heart of the Valley" to get a share of these markets.

The board chairman presented a history of trade and commerce in the Kaukauna area, illustrated with slides of photographs taken in the late 1800's. He also showed artist's drawings of the city made in 1881 and 1886, thus demonstrating an important growth period of the city.

Maps To City
McCorison presented enlarged copies of the two illustrated maps were hired soon and Mayor to Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon. The Bayorgeon predicted the continued growth of Kaukauna as long as Thilmany continued to prosper.

McCorison noted the population had increased 53 per cent in the last 30 years to more than 10,000. He mentioned the growth and foundation of new industries in the city and cited a report by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce which indicated what 100 new factory jobs in a community would produce as far as city growth was concerned.

Growth Results
Using a slide, McCorison indicated 100 new factory jobs result in 296 more people in a community, 112 new households, 107 more cars, 74 jobs created, four new retail establishments, $590,000 more personal income, $270,000 more bank deposits and $360,000 more in retail sales.

Touching on business methods and techniques, he posed the question, "Are we safe to assume that the methods we used in the last 10 or 15 years are effective in today's changing world?" He noted, "our markets have changed, our types of customers have changed, the wants of the people have changed and the location and distributing channels have changed."

He commented on the change evident in Kaukauna, such as the upswing in food business, new homes, rebuilding of stores and other features. "I am not the sage to suggest which of your methods are still good and which need changing, but we are sure that if we at Thilmany are to live and prosper as a kraft specialty mill in the north, we have to keep our product and our methods of production, as well as distribution, abreast of the changes which we will face in the competitive years ahead."

lecturer in physics during the 1961-62 academic year. He has been granted a Fulbright award for this purpose.

Oct. 1 Van den Akker will present at the university a series of lectures and seminars on the physics of paper, dealing with the theory and phenomena relating to paper's physical and optical properties. The appointment will end April 1, 1962.

In his position as head of the physics group at the institute, Van den Akker has contributed to the application of physics to research on the structure and properties of paper.

Widely Known
He is widely known for work in instrumentation research and development of methods for measurement of both physical and optical properties of paper, especially in the areas of spectrophotometry and color measurement.

He has assisted in development over the years of an international system for standardization of a specialized reflectance known in the pulp and paper industry as "brightness."

He has published more than a hundred scientific and technical papers in United States and foreign journals as a result of his work.

Honor Graduate
In addition to his fundamental and applied research work in the laboratories, Van den Akker is a professor in the institute's graduate school and is closely associated with fundamental research work carried on by institute students for their doctoral theses.

Van den Akker received his Ph.D. with honors from the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena in 1951, joined the staff of Washington in St. Louis and came to Appleton in 1953.

Committee to Ask Bids for Airport Work

Blacktopping, Water System Relocation Planned at Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — Bids for blacktopping the 350 feet added to the north-south runway at the county airport last fall will be sought by the aviation committee, the committee decided Thursday night.

Supv. Alvin Staffeld, Neenah, committee chairman, and Steve Wittman, airport manager, were directed to have specifications prepared and arrange for the bidding. It is hoped the work may be done before the summer season.

The committee voted to have the water main and sanitary sewer line for the new flight control tower relocated to avoid interfering with any future development of the road to the tower. The original plan had the sewer only one foot east of the road and the committee thought this would hinder widening the road which it said is narrow now.

Foundations for the flight control tower have been poured and crews are framing the columns for the second floor support which will be poured in a week to 10 days.

Receipt of an order from the state industrial commission for changes to the dumb waiter at the airport terminal led the committee to plan a check of the electrical code requirements at the time of the installation of the dumb waiter several years ago and previous state inspections of it.

Committee members wondered why, if it was approved earlier, it should be changed now. The changes ordered resulted from a recent inspection by the state elevator inspector.

11 Fox Cities Persons Arrested During Radar Checks in Bar Areas

CHILTON — The arrest of 11 heavy flow of late night and early morning traffic originating at beer bars. Police reported, however, it is difficult to maintain constant vigilance on the main arteries affected because of a manpower shortage.

Calumet County has only a four-man traffic department and, except during emergencies, only two patrolmen are on duty at any one time. Two patrolmen are needed to maintain radar patrol on a highway, which leaves the remainder of the county unpatrolled at the time radar is being used.

All of the arrests were for speeding and were made after midnight while checking westbound traffic on State 114 and 55 in the Sherwood area. Not all of the drivers, however, were minors. County police said.

The crackdown, according to police, is aimed essentially at the heavy flow of late night and early morning traffic originating at beer bars. Police reported, however, it is difficult to maintain constant vigilance on the main arteries affected because of a manpower shortage.

Rebellion of Youth

"The Peace Corps is a rebellion in the sense that young people are trying to purge the idea that a country can buy friends for a couple of million dollars a year."

Adult keynote was Dr. Carl Winters, Oak Park, Ill., a clergyman active in crime prevention work.

He told the young people not to sneer at adults for youth stands on the shoulder of the past. "We failed in many things," he said, "but you are on a higher plateau than any other youth in history have been."

The world today can be viewed with complete confusion or as a challenge, he said. He urged the young people to take the second view.

Two Injured In Separate Auto Crashes

OSHKOSH—One driver who was reaching into his dinner bucket for a cookie and another who dropped a cigarette lighter were involved in separate auto accidents today, with both vehicles striking trees.

Eugene R. Hoger, 30, 431 N. Spring St., Winneconne, was taken in a squad car to Mercy Hospital here for treatment of a cut on top of his head. He was going northwest on State 110 at 1:04 a.m. and lost control while reaching for the cookie, police said.

The car went off a curve on the right side, struck a tree and swung about, knocking down 90 feet of fence on the property of Rudolph Wilde.

Involved in the other accident, at 12:24 a.m. today, also on Highway 110 in the Town of Oshkosh, was an auto driven by Robert E. Haebig, 24, 1123 N. Main St., Oshkosh. He told police he was headed east rounding a curve and a passenger offered him a cigarette. He dropped the lighter, and the car hit the soft embankment and continued 213 feet to the east.

Injured in his car was Christine DeVries, 18, route 2, Randolph. Uninjured were Haebig's wife and another passenger, William Curtiss, 20, 1303 Lamar St., Oshkosh.

Regents Vote to Accept Bequest

MILWAUKEE (AP) — University of Wisconsin regents today voted to accept a $100,000 bequest to help "worthy and needy gentle Protestant students" complete their final two years of study.

The regents split 5-2 in balloting on the proposal, with Arthur Debardeleben of Park Falls, and J. H. Friedrich of Milwaukee voting against acceptance.

The funds were made available in the will of the late Ida D. Altemus of Stoughton.

Debardeleben called acceptance of the gift "discriminatory." Friedrich added that he disapproved of the bequest because it was an auto driven by Robert E. Haebig, 24, 1123 N. Main St., Oshkosh. He told police he was headed east rounding a curve and a passenger offered him a cigarette. He dropped the lighter, and the car hit the soft embankment and continued 213 feet to the east.

Injured in his car was Christine DeVries, 18, route 2, Randolph. Uninjured were Haebig's wife and another passenger, William Curtiss, 20, 1303 Lamar St., Oshkosh.

Extension Remote for Menominees

Laird Tells Indians Of Probable Course Of Action in Congress

Post-Crescent News Service

KESHENA — The possibility of getting an extension date for termination through both houses of congress by April 30 is "very remote," Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Marshfield) told the Menominee Indians Thursday night.

The congressman, whose district includes the timberland and lakes of the 365 square mile Menominee reservation, also said the interior department is scheduled to release a report Monday opposing indefinite extension of the termination deadline. This, apparently is the position of the Kennedy administration, he said.

Laird spoke at a general council at the American Legion Hall here. More than 200 tribal members attended.

Hearings Set

The congressman said a house committee on Indian affairs is scheduled to hold hearings in Washington Monday and Tuesday on two bills he has introduced. One would extend the date for the end of U.S. government supervision over the reservation and the 3,270-member tribe indefinitely at the discretion of Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall.

The other would provide an eight-year phasing out program, designate the tribe's new business organization, Menominee Enterprises, Inc., as a federal charter corporation and authorize $2,500,000 in loans to modernize the tribe's lumber business and develop recreation possibilities.

Laird said the Indians must be realistic about the chances of two identical bills introduced in the senate by Sens. Alexander Wiley and William Proxmire. He said Sen. Clintonville Anderson (D-N. M.), chairman of the senate committee, has scheduled no hearings on the bills.

If no senate hearings are scheduled next week, he said, a bill can't pass by April 30 without being placed on the unanimous consent calendar. This would almost assure defeat, he added.

Choice is Compromise

George Kenote, a tribal member and employee of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, told fellow Menominees that the choice is a compromise allowing for no postponement of the termination date but providing continued federal aid which, he said, "is needed badly."

In formal action, the general council voted to instruct its two delegates in Washington, Jerome Grignon, chairman of the Menominee Advisory aid as well as the eight-year phasing out program with final termination on April 30, 1969.

The council also voted in favor of a proposal introduced by Richard Dodge urging congress to set up a federal government program to buy 10 million board feet of Menominee lumber each year for the next 10 years.

Correction

KIMBERLY — Alvin Fulcer, unopposed for village president of Kimberly, received 844 votes in Tuesday's election of the 1,012 votes cast indicating 168 failed to cast ballots for this office, not 400 as stated in Wednesday's Post-Crescent. Contested races usually draw more votes than those in which only one candidate is seeking office.

New Alex's To Open in Appleton

Milton Arps, owner and manager of Alex's Supper Club, announced today he will be opening another bar and restaurant in Appleton, on the southeast corner of Superior and Franklin Streets, in a building owned by the Aid Association for Lutherans.

Arps says he hopes to have it open by Aug. 1, after extensive remodeling.

This will be Arps' fourth restaurant, and second in Appleton. He also operates establishments in Menasha and Oshkosh.

He has been in the restaurant business since 1936, and went into business for himself in 1947 with the Menasha restaurant.

Exhibit Automatic Farm Equipment

Push-Button Age Already Here, as Machines at Green Bay Display Show

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — The push-button which a few years ago was a farmer's Buck Rodgers story that he told his children, now is a reality. An estimated 15,000 farmers who attended the Farm Materials Handling Exposition here Wednesday and Thursday had a chance to compare the automatic equipment they will need.

Said one of the 60 manufacturers and distributors who had exhibits at the show held at the Brown County Veterans Memorial Arena:

"The farmers who have flocked here do not come as fascinated spectators, but rather as down-to-earth businessmen who realize that automation is no longer a luxury but a necessity."

Said a Kaukauna farmer:

"This show provided us with a wonderful opportunity to compare the different makes of equipment which we must have if we are to compete in the dairy industry and make a decent living at it."

Exhibitors were unanimous in their enthusiasm for the event sponsored by the Wisconsin Public Service Corp. and the University of Wisconsin county agricultural extension service.

As the farmers milled about the arena they saw such items as automatic pipeline systems which takes milk from cows and places it in a cooler which cools it to 36 degrees and keeps it there until a bulk milk truck arrives to haul it directly to the factory.

Silo Unloader

Other booths showed automatic feeding and cleaning equipment including wagons with automatic unloaders and silos with unloaders which throw the silage down the chute where it is mixed with ground feed and automatically blended before it is pulled out into the feeders through augers.

A dozen different firms featured barn cleaners which are custom-made to fit every shape and size of barn.

One exhibitor showed "push-button hog raising" which featured such items as automatic waterers, selectomatic feeding, elevators and shuttle-stroke pen cleaners. Another showed similar equipment for use in hen houses which included time-cycle switches which automatically distribute feed at designated periods of the day.

Feed Blender

A feed blender which is hauled behind a tractor directly to the feed yard where it mixes concentrates, grain and roughage into the formula required by the farmer was shown by a Minnesota firm.

Fogging equipment used to spray cattle for flies during the summer was exhibited. The simple machine throws a fine spray each time the cows brush against a bar while leaving the barn.

Cliff Nolan, who was with 15 farmers from Waupaca County nearly 50 miles away, said the group "thoroughly enjoyed the exposition" and picked up ideas on future plans for developing the farm plants.

'Axis Sally' to be Freed on Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prison
Gates will open soon for "Axis Sally," the American girl who broadcast Nazi Germany's propaganda to U. S. troops during World War II.

Chairman Richard A. Chappell of the U. S. Parole Board announced today the board has granted parole to Mildred Elizabeth Gillars effective July 10. She has served 12 years of a 10-to-30 year sentence for treason in the Federal Women's Reformatory at Alderson, W. Va.

No 60 and white haired, Miss Gillars will find seclusion in a convent, where she has arranged to work after her release from prison.

Chappell said she will be required to report periodically to a parole officer until her 30-year term expires in 1979.

Manawa Lions Offered Plan for Summer Stock

MENAWA — Mayor Charles
Hoffman said today the Lions Club and the board of directors of the Manawa Theater have been approached with a plan to turn the closed cinema theater into a summer stock theater. He said neither the directors nor the club will make a decision on the plan until the summer stock backers have been investigated.

Carl Sturm is president of the 120-stockholder theater corporation. The building was built in 1946 at a cost of $40,300 and was closed recently because of declining revenues.

Offers Plan

Hoffman said there was considerable interest in the proposed summer stock plan but that there was no truth to a report out of Milwaukee that the proposal had been accepted.

Offering the plan to use the idle theater is Richard Goldsmith, the husband of Milwaukee actress Judy Becker. He discussed his plans with the Lions Club this week.

He said he would be associated with Thomas Durzinski, musical director of the "Kismet" production appearing at Milwaukee's Pabst Theater.

Goldsmith told the Lions Club
he would like to aim at a June 16 opening night. There would have to be some remodeling to make the cinema theater appropriate for legitimate theater work.

He said he plans to use light comedies and musical reviews featuring six or seven different productions during a 63-performance weekend schedule. He said
"Oklahoma" would be produced in connection with the Lions Club's annual rodeo July 1, 2, and 4.

Beer Garden

Goldsmith also outlined a suggestion that the parking lot adjacent to the theater be made into a beer garden.

"is the Lions' understanding, Hoffman said, the Goldsmith troupe would be formed about a nucleus of seasoned professional players with semi-professional and amateur performers from the Manawa area filling in.

Goldsmith said that in addition to the adult evening performances he would develop matinees of general interest to children.

The Lions have been asked to back the venture by selling tickets.

Series of Skits

'Medium Rare' Bright Musical in Chicago

BY MIKE DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

CHICAGO — A new musical revue in the midst of a long run here — "Medium Rare" — is, you should pardon the pun, very well done.

The comedy smash is on display at the Happy Medium, a small but handsomely appointed new Rush Street theater. Seating about 350 people, the "Medium" was built by Chicago restaura-teurs George and Oscar Marienthal at a reported cost of $600, 000.

The show is a series of 21 skits, some short, some long, some employing the full cast,
some just one actor.

Some of the numbers are very funny, others just try hard. The percentage of good ones is high, however, and that's about all that can be expected in this unfunny age.

The show opens with the author of a new musical comedy addressing the audience. He says something like this:

All the Same

"All musical shows are, essentially, the same. They open with the same old chorus line singing the same old opening number.
My show is different."

At this point, "Medium Rare's" chorus bursts onstage singing our author's up-tempo opener —
"Man's Inhumanity to Man."

The skit "Two-Way Play" takes a telling slap at the theater. One of those English "comedies of manners" is done first in the British style. Then, for Broadway consumption, it's given the Tennessee Williams treatment.

The lines remain identical, only the costumes and inflections change. And, of course, it's an entirely different show.

"The Arts" finds three mothers complaining about their young sons' pursuit of the arts. "My Ernest, he is a bum," sings one.

"Does nothing but write silly stories all day."

"Ah, poor Mrs. Hemingway," diriges the chorus.

A fourth mom, however, is proud.

"My son, Charles, is on his way to being a big success," she chirps. "He's making lots of friends, and lots of money."

"Ah," enthuses the chorus,
"Lucky Mrs. Luciano."

Bright Skit

Another bright skit "Guess Who was There?" needles name-droppers. "Elsa. Noel. Tallulah and Cole" turn up everywhere during a round-the-world trip.

Then, there's Medea — but as Walt Disney would do it, for the kiddies. Satires on group analysis and poetry reading sessions also score heavily.

There are no "name" actors in the cast and all nine of "Medium Rare's" characters (the word is used advisably) are on stage much of the time. Most players in the show cast do have impressive Broadway or "off-Broadway" credits.

Steps Taken To Get Radar

Committee Will Advertise, Buy Equipment

OSHKOSH — Sheriff and coroner's committee members Thursday afternoon took steps to secure radar equipment for county police with the $1,300 authorized by the Winnebago County Board last month.

Chairman Elmer G. Steinhilber of the committee was authorized to contact the district attorney to learn if bids were needed for the equipment. He is to either advertise for bids if they are needed, or arrange for the purchase.

Residents' Campaign

Securing the radar equipment results from a campaign by residents, town governments and organizations in the north end of the county which petitioned for radar after four persons were killed in two separate traffic accidents within eight days on Highway 114 west of Neenah.

Sheriff Richard Lowell told the committee Thursday that residents in that part of the county are anxious to have radar as soon as possible.

A letter was read from George Oaks, county Civil Defense cor-donator, naming the sheriff cor-donator for all law enforcement agencies in the county under Civil Defense.

Town of Neenah Closes Year With $5,569 Cash

Major Expense Items for Year Include

cording to the annual report distributed at the town meeting Tuesday.

taled $394,697.16. Disbursements totaled $376,852.06. The difference is $15,000 still due Lakeview School District. Major resource was $91, 910.11 in state income tax rebates.

Major expense items were fire department, $3,500.
school tuition, and obligations.
Income tax rebate from the state will provide an estimated $110,000 of the total income. The rest will come from Winnebago County tax settlements and local licenses.

Rename Appleton Man Beekeeper Chairman

C. C. Meyer Retains Post; Kaukauna Officer Reappointed Secretary

OSHKOSH — District beekeepers meeting at the courthouse here in the first of six district sessions renamed C. C. Meyer Appleton, as chairman and William Jacobsen, Kaukauna, secretary for another year.

Preliminary plans were made for the annual convention of the Wisconsin Beekeepers Association here Oct. 18 and 19. Host for Wednesday's session was Melvin Ber-holtz, Oshkosh, president of the Winnebago County Beekeepers Association.

The use of insecticides on seed crops in relation to honey bees was discussed by County Agent Vernon W. Peroutky of Winnebago County. He reported on research conducted by entomolo-gists of the United States Department of Agriculture at Tucson, Ariz.

He emphasized that insecticides should be applied on crops when they are not in flower. If it becomes necessary that crops be treated during the flowering stage, the insecticide is to be applied at the time of day when insects are not present.

In research on alfalfa, where field and honey bees were made available but where harmful insects had been treated with an insecticide, the yield was 321 pounds of alfalfa seed per acre.
This compares with 31 pounds of seed where an equal population of bees were provided but where there was no insect control.

It was pointed out that some insecticides are more toxic than others in relation to bees. Fungicides and hormone weed sprays are non-toxic and have no effect on bees.

Also on the program and reporting on their various fields of work were John Long, State Department of Agriculture bee inspector; Marlin Schwieler, State Department of Agriculture marketing specialist, and Arthur Kehl, Watertown, Wisconsin Beekeepers Association secretary.

About 70 persons attended the district session.

Results of Survey To be Discussed by School Committee

NEENAH — Data collected on rural schools and their problems in the Neenah area will be aired April 20 in a report by the policy planning unit of the area school reorganization study committee.

Lakeview, Clayton, Spring Road, Tullar and Gillingham School representatives met Thursday night with the Neenah committee and selected Logan Whitcomb to head the publicity committee. Whitcomb, working with district chairmen, will coordinate all subcommittee reports and issue information to the public.

Walther Chrapla, finance chairman, reported that several minor discrepancies were found in the Wentland report, which dealt with the long-term indebtedness of the districts. He was authorized to contact Wentland to clarify the report.

A summary of problems involving how to set up various types of districts was given by Vern Hanson, who heads the legal unit.

There is some doubt about whether the city or the rural districts should make the first move for reorganization, Henry Malchow, Tullar District, said.

Neenah Mayor Chester S. Bell declared the committee should not act, but existing official bodies should declare their positions, so the committee would know what to do.

Also to be taken up at the April 20 meeting are advantages of joint and unified systems.

Canada Pays $3,780,000 to U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Canada has come to the rescue of the hard-pressed United Nations with a contribution of roughly $3,780,000. The payment Thursday cleans up the Canadian debt joint and unified systems.

Buhl Goes Distance Again But Falls, 6-5

Bell Double Wins in 9th For Redlegs

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Southpaw ace Warren Spahn was set for a final tuneup today as the Milwaukee Braves and the Cincinnati Reds continued their barnstorming tour northward.

Spahn, the Braves' opening day choice to face St. Louis in Milwaukee next Tuesday, was named to loosen up his valuable arm with a few innings of work.

Right hander Bob Buhl, who always finds Cincinnati a tough team to beat, tried to overcome his nemesis again Thursday and wound up the loser as the Reds defeated the Braves 6-5 at Columbia, S.C.

Buhl, prepped for his ninth National League season, was bombed early and late but managed to go the distance for the third time this Spring.

Hold 5-3 Lead

The Braves held a 5-3 lead after seven innings before Gene Freese homered off Buhl in the eighth. Then, Leo Cardenas tied the game with a homer in the ninth and a Jerry Zimmerman single and a Gus Bell double gave the Reds the triumph.

John DeWitt opened the game before 2,230 fans on a rain-soaked day with a homer off Cincinnati ace Bob Purkey. Eddie Mathews and Wes Covington later added homers for the Braves.

The loss left the Braves with a 12-13 record.

Southpaw George Brunet was struck by a line drive off the bat of Johnny Logan in batting practice and will be sidelined for a couple of days.

From Charlotte, the Braves and Reds will fly to Louisville for a weekend series. Milwaukee then will fly home to open the National League campaign against St. Louis next Tuesday.

Army Private Upsets Laver

Jerry Moss Posts 6-4, 6-4 Victory In Masters Meet

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The odds are that Neale Fraser, Australia's top world ranking tennis player, will walk off with the second annual Masters Tennis Championship but longshot lovers are keeping their eye on Jerry Moss, an Army enlisted man.

Moss pulled the upset of the tournament Thursday by defeating second-seeded Rod Laver, 6-4, 6-4. Laver, also an Australian, was easily downed by the unseeded private first class now stationed at San Antonio, Tex.

Moss, who is from Miami Beach, meets Roy Emerson, No. 3 seed from Australia in the one semifinal match today.

Emerson made the semifinals by defeating Miguel Olivera of Ecuador, 6-3, 6-4 Thursday.

Fraser will have to wait until Saturday to face the winner of a delayed quarter-final match between Jim Shaffer of St. Petersburg and Luis Ayala, No. 4 seed from Brazil.

Shaffer won his berth in the quarter-finals by upsetting Marty Mulligan of Australia 10-8, 6-4 in their match Thursday. Shaffer is a student at the University of Florida.

Fraser, as expected, moved into the semifinals, with a win over a Marine from Santa Monica, Calif., Jon Douglas, 6-3, 10-8.

Stroh Keglers Setting Pace in ABC Team Event

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's Stroh Beers are ruling the roost in the American Bowling Congress Tournament on the best display of team rolling in the 34-day-old show.

Strohs surged to the front of the professional classic division Thursday night on a 2,972 score to go with their prior 3,006 for a 5,978 six-game total.

The Detroiters, led by Bob Strampe's six-gamer of 1,320, displaced Chicago's Hammans as leaders. The Hammans had led the classic since March 29 on 5,910.

Leo Posada Wins Starting Berth

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 23-year-old Cuban, Leo Posada, has won the starting assignment in right field for the Kansas City Athletics.

Posada collected three doubles and a single and drove in two runs Thursday as the As defeated Minnesota 9-4. Manager Joe Gordon announced immediately after the game that Leo would replace the veteran Hank Bauer in the lineup opening day against Boston.

Posada played in the Three-I league in 1956 with the Rochester and Winona clubs.

Bob Sinks 100-Foot Putt; Gary Player 1 Shot Behind

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Arnold Palmer, who had things mostly his own way after last year's opening round today was crowded by two dangerous fellow pros and a brawny amateur plunging into the second round of the 25th Masters Golf tournament.

Palmer was tied for first at 4-under-par 68 with Bob Rosburg, whose record 100-foot putt keyed a torrid finish over rain-soaked Augusta National Thursday.

Just a stroke behind Palmer and Rosburg, whose rallying round also included a holed 120-foot pitch shot, was the year's top money-winner, South African Gary Player, at 69.

Closes With 34

Two strokes arrears was the muscular amateur, Jack Nicklaus, who bagged a 70 playing with Palmer. Nicklaus, a runner up to Palmer in the 1960 U.S. Open, matched the Masters champ's closing nine 34, two under par.

Last year, when Palmer led every round to capture his second Masters title, he shot an opening 67—two strokes better than the field.

Four others broke Augusta National's par 72 in Thursday's persistent drizzle which failed to dampen the enthusiasm of more than 10,000 spectators.

They included two-time champion Byron Nelson, 49, the 1957 king, Doug Ford, and two solid journeyman pros, Paul Harney and Johnny Potl, who came in with 71's.

Seven were knotted at 72, including amateur Charley Cox, last year's runnerup Ken Venturi, PGA champ Jay Hebert, Gene Littler, Tommy Bolt, Stan Leonard, and Billy Casper.

Snead, Hogan Hit 74

Among no fewer than 23 locked at 74 were three-time champion Sammy Snead and two-time winner Ben Hogan.

Papa Improves Control, Retains Chance to Stick With Orioles

MIAMI — From perhaps the first moment that John Papa decided to become a pitcher he has heard the word "control".

Scouts and coaches have told Papa that to win he must be able to throw the ball just where he wants it.

streaks didn't last too long and he would lose again.

This spring, training with Baltimore, it has been different although it didn't start out that way. Papa opened the exhibition season by walking his usual half-dozen and getting tagged trying to get the ball over the plate.

After that first performance, Manager Paul Richards and Pitching Coach Harry Brecheen worked on Papa's pitching motion. "I've got some rhythm now," John says. The results of the corrected motion was evidenced by 12 consecutive innings without allowing an earned run.

Both Richards and Brecheen are noted for their "discoveries" of young pitchers that just come along to spring training "for the

Lovellette Returns To Lineup Saturday

ST. LOUIS (AP) The St. Louis Hawks today counted on the probable return of Clyde Lovellette — back brace and all — to give them a much needed lift against the Boston Celtics in pro basketball's world series.

The 6-foot-9 Lovellette, who averaged 20.3 points against the Celtics during the regular season, will be available for duty here Saturday afternoon when the best-of-seven National Basketball Association title playoff resumes. The Hawks trail 0-2.

Lovellette, out of action since March 27 with a twisted back suffered in the semifinal playoffs against the Lakers, has been working out the last few days. "The Hawks' third best rebounder and scorer said the doctors have given him the go-ahead, provided he wears a stiff brace on his back.

FUTELESS BELLVAGHED ABOUT HIS ACCOUNTANT...SO A PAL SOLD HIM ON USING ANOTHER EXPERT...

SO HOW IS HE MAKING OUT WITH THE NEW "EXPERT"? MEH-MEH...NOT SO SOLVENT, PAL...NOT SO SOLVENT!

© 1961 King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

One of the occupational hazards of sportswriting is being required, on occasion, to listen to exaggerated tales of long ago deriding - do by former athletes.

During a recent lunch-hour conversation, George Browne, Post-Crescent manager of general advertising, told me that he was a 6-4 high jumper while in high school.

Now, hitting 6 feet, 4 inches in the high jump is quite a feat. The Wisconsin state Class A track meet high jump record is 6-2 and 3/4, set by Green Bay West's Lance Olsen.

And, 20 years ago when Browne was doing his prep high-jumping, 6-4 was within about 7 inches of the world record.

So, I dismissed Browne's remark as the product, perhaps, of a dim memory or a fertile imagination, or both. Later, I even indulged in some needling of Mr. Browne—such as asking him if he'd done any other solo flying recently.

Documentary Proof
George subsequently furnished me with documentary proof of his 6-4 jump—a picture and story on one of several such prodigious leaps he made for Los Angeles' Dorsey High School.

At the time, Browne was just 5-10. So he was leaping 6 full inches over his height, an amazing feat as any high-jumper will be glad to tell you. George weighed 145 then. But, those days are gone forever.

Browne used the western role, a technique which has since dropped from favor. The style in high jumping has gone from the scissors to the eastern role, to the western role, to the current straddle.

Use Straddle
Two lads who are currently bettering the 7-foot mark, America's John Thomas and Russia's Valery Brumel, are proponents of the straddle. This is the style that you see almost all area high school and college stars using—crossing the bar with the lead leg, then the stomach and then snapping the trailing leg up and over.

In Browne's western, the jumper tucks one leg under the other and crosses the bar on his side.

According to Lawrence College Track Coach Gene Davis the western role is more complicated than the straddle. "It takes a little better form. The straddle is easier to teach and learn, which is why we use it."

Browne thinks top high jumpers are born, not made. "You either have spring in your legs or you don't," he asserts. "There are basic leg exercises — of course — that can be used to develop what you already have."

Stomach Muscles
George also believes exercises for the stomach muscles, such as pull-ups, are important.

California's year-around mild climate, Browne is certain, is the reason for the fast development of high school trackmen there.

"We had three boys on our high school team who ran the 100 in .09.7," he remembers.

George earned six letters in spring sports at Dorsey, three in track and three in baseball as a pitcher. On days when baseball games and track meets were both set, George would pitch — meanwhile passing at each height during the high jump competition — till the game was over. Then, he'd jump at the height which had been reached.

He also picked up a trio of football letters, as an end. Four years in the Navy during World War II, including two years on the steel decks at sea, took most of the spring from his legs.

George's best leap while a trackman at the University of Maine was 6-0.

The father of five daughters, Browne joined the Post-Crescent in August, 1959.

Scott Pickart, who starred for Shawano High's basketball team as a junior in 1959-60, helped lead his Tucson Catalina High School club to the runner-up spot in the 1961 Arizona state prep tournament.

The 6-4 Pickart also made honorable mention all-state. He hit 203 points during the regular season and led his conference in free throw accuracy, with a blazing 79 per cent.

Pickart lettered in basketball as both a sophomore and junior at Shawano and was junior class president.

Jim Carver, catcher for the 1960 Fox Cities Foxes, was married April 1. The 20-year-old Carver was on the parent Baltimore Orioles roster before that time.

John Papa, 21, who had a 7-6 mark for the Foxes last summer, was still with the parent club at last word. He gave up just one run during a 12-inning stretch.

Manager Paul Richards noted Papa had a good live arm and lacked only control. "It's all in your motion," Richards told him. "You lack rhythm." Reportedly, almost overnight, Papa became a pitcher, not a thrower.

Other officers for next season are: Edna Mayefski, vice president; Gladys Eggert, treasurer; Addie Martin, sergeant at arms, and Vi Wege, secretary.

Word from the Minnesota Twins camp was that 1959 Foxes star "Zorro" Versalles was complaining of a sore arm and homesickness for his wife, in Cuba.

Other officers for next season are: Edna Mayefski, vice president; Gladys Eggert, treasurer; Addie Martin, sergeant at arms, and Vi Wege, secretary.

They all came in the first 14 minutes. Bobby Hull flicking in two goals and Kenny Wharram the other.

3-0 Lead
"Maybe, that 3-0 lead lulled us into becoming too defensive minded," said Hawk Coach Rudy Pilous afterward. "We passed up too many chances. We've got to skate harder and check harder. We played too carefully and Detroit took the play away from us. Red Wing goalie Terry Sawchuk was replaced by Hank Bassen at the start of the second period. Sawchuk collided with Hawk Murray Balfour and re-injured a bruised nerve in his left shoulder. He may not be able to play Saturday.

Also Doubtful
Also doubtful is Detroit's ace defenseman, Marcel Pronovost, who has a bruised right ankle and saw only limited duty.

The Red Wings first goal came late in the second period when Len Lundie took a pass from Gordie Howe and rammed the puck past Glen Hall.

Detroit scored its second goal in the final minute of the third period when Allan Johnson poked in a seven-footer after Hall had kicked out a shot by Howe.

Chicago players had little to say as they peeled off their uniforms. There was much more liveliness in Detroit's dressingroom. "We'll get 'em," said Howe. "This will give us a real lift, because we didn't fold up."

WUAUPACA — Thursday's baseball game scheduled between Wauapaca High School and the Oshkosh High "B" team was postponed because of wet grounds.

Norman Ullman (Center) of the Detroit Red Wings is hemmed in between goalie Glenn Hall (right) and Murray Balfour (left) of Chicago as Detroit attempts to score in the first period of Thursday night's game in Chicago. The Black Hawks won the opener of the Stanley Cup finals, 3-2.

trail led the New York Yankees to the St. Louis Cardinals' Busch Stadium today for the opener of a three-game series.

Both idle Thursday while the Cincinnati Reds again clipped Milwaukee, 6-5. The Dodgers belted San Francisco 14-7, the Cubs defeated Boston 9-5, the Detroit Tigers triumphed Chicago's White Sox 7-2, the Cleveland Indians beat the Los Angeles Angels 6-5 in 12 innings and Kansas City smacked Minnesota 9-4.

In a night game at Miami, Baltimore whipped Washington 2-1 with right-hander Steve Barber blanking the Senators on four hits in the seven innings he worked.

Sad Sam Jones of the Giants was tagged for nine runs in four innings at Phoenix by the Dodgers, who finished with 13 hits—including a double, three triples and home runs by Duke Snider, winning pitcher Don Drysdale and Charlie Smith.

At Sarasota, the Tigers had just four hits, but won their third in a row with five unearned runs in the second inning. Herb Score was the loser.

Johnny Romano's third hit of the day, a one out single, capped a two-run comeback for the Indians in the bottom of the 12th at Tucson against Angels' rookie Aubrey Gatewood. Lou Klimchok's three-run homer brought the A's from behind in the seventh against Twins' ace Pete Ramos at West Palm Beach.

Dodgers, Yanks Picked To Win '61 Pennants

POLL OF WRITERS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Yankees today were picked by an Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters to win the major league baseball pennants this season.

The Dodgers nosed out the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League by three points. However, the Dodgers received 125 of the 336 first place votes to 92 for the Pirates. The Pirates drew strong support for second and third place to make it close.

In the American League, the Yankees made a runaway of the poll, more than doubling Baltimore's first place votes. The Yankees had 192 firsts to the Orioles' 85. In points the Yanks led 3,131 to 2,866.

Pick Schultz As Net Coach

Grant, Quentin Sharpe, Motz Drew and Dick Lange. Other squad members are Al Blackburn and sophomores Fred Flom, Tom Schinabeck, Paul Lange and Don Taylor.

Schultz competed in tennis, basketball and track at Neenah High School prior to his graduation in 1946. After a service stint, he entered Louisiana State University. He gained his degree in 1953. Schultz played varsity basketball and tennis at LSU, reaching the doubles finals in the Southeastern Conference one year.

The tennis schedule:

April 21—Grinnell
April 22—Cornell
April 29—Beloit
May 3—Ripon
May 4—At Carroll
May 6—At Oshkosh
May 13—At St. Olaf and Carleton

John Papa Has Chance To Stick

Miami was the Baltimore Class AAA farm club last year.

"I sure would like to know what's going on", John said. In any event Papa has earned a promotion for 1961 on the basis of his spring showing.

While Papa has the best chance of any of the former Foxes players to stick this year, there are several others that are here or were here and made some impressions on the Oriole "brass".

Sent to Little Rock
Arne Thorsland, another strong righthander who like Papa suffers from occasional control troubles, failed to see much action this spring and has been sent to Little Rock where he is expected to be one of four starters.

Jim Carver, a catcher with the 1960 champions, had a successful spring with Baltimore. The "brass" regards him as an excellent prospect and has dispatched him to Little Rock. Carver didn't report immediately, however, as he went home to North Carolina to get married first.

Bob Saverine worked as hard as anyone this spring here at Miami. "Sav" made all of the two-day drills and has seen action mostly at second base. The Darrien, Conn. bonus baby was dispatched to Little Rock to play the keystone position.

Before he left, Saverine reported that Eddie Robinson, the Orioles hitting instructor, had given him several batting tips and that since the instruction, he has been hitting "rockets".

DeMerit Powered Way Into Starting Job With Braves

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Bonus have Eddie Mathews for some in-baby Johnny DeMerit, a $100,000 grab who has proved a disappointment in trials the past two years, is powering his way into a starting job with the Milwaukee Braves.

"It looks like we will have to find some place to play him," said Manager Charlie Dressen Thursday after DeMerit's third homer of the exhibition season.

"He has hit safely in five straight games and hit for distances, too," Dressen said. "John can play any outfield position and play it well. He retrieves a ball fast and gets it away quick and about as accurately as Henry Aaron.

Has Matured

Matured A Lot
"He has matured a lot in the last year and I am not the least bit concerned about his .270 average at Louisville last summer."

DeMerit, who comes from Port Washington, Wis., has battled his way into the forefront in the Braves' outfield. With only Aaron a sure starting choice, DeMerit ranks with Al Spangler and Lee Maye in the fight for the other two starting berths.

"With three of those top four in the lineup we have added speed," Dressen noted. "Then we

Dodgers Put Roebuck on Disabled List

Relief Hurler's Arm So Sore He Can't Throw Ball
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sore-armed Ed Roebuck, who made a great comeback from the minors in 1960, has been placed on the disabled list by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The sinkerball specialist hasn't pitched in a game this spring and his arm is so dead he couldn't even throw for batting practice. The team physician, after making X-rays, concluded that the 29-year-old right-hander has acute and chronic adhesive capsulitis of the right shoulder.

Is Complication
This is a complication of shoulder trouble that hit the ace of the Dodger bullpen midway in the 1959 season and forced him to quit.

A good hitting pitcher, Roebuck decided to start over as an infielder with St. Paul. In stretching for throws he gradually worked out the soreness and pain that afflicted his right side and arm.

This spring Roebuck's arm suddenly went lame and he suffered shooting pains whenever he tried to throw a ball.

"He has overcome tremendous odds before," said Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Dodger physician, "and it is possible he may be able to make a comeback."

AS APPLETON GROWS!
Years ago "anyone" sold real estate; Next — "real estate men", followed by "licensed brokers", more recently Realtors, and now — today — M.L.S. Realtors.
Today's buyers of real estate demand "Super Market" shopping — one stop with a wide selection of available properties. We of M.L.S. provide this — a variety of properties from many Realtors' offices.
Sellers of real estate demand the widest exposure of their properties to many prospective buyers. We of M.L.S. provide this — many Realtors' offices with many salesmen.

Police Chief Frank Ramon, right, watches as a detective shovels out entrance to tunnel behind South Seattle bank branch after its vault was robbed in February. A month later the FBI arrested a 25-year-old man for the robbery. He dug the tunnel for four months.

Diligent Young Man Digs His Way Into Bank, Prison

Needed Money, So He Pulled Off Expert Job—Except His Capture

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—At first he was a young man out of work sticking at a night digging job for four months to get money for his family. Wells Benner van Steenberg Jr. didn't mind the hard work Van Steenberg and odd hours because his digging led him under a bank vault and eventually got him $45,600. It also got him up to 20 years in prison.

Had to Spend it

How it all happened might have confounded investigators much longer except, as often happens, Van Steenberg could hardly wait to start spending the money.

Officials of the South Seattle branch of the Peoples National Bank were amazed last Feb. 20 when they opened the vault. A 14 by 16-inch hole had been blasted in the 1½-foot-thick reinforced concrete floor. It was centered nicely in the vault so it didn't set off the burglar alarm. The amount looted from tellers boxes came to $45,689.33.

Expert Job

Authorities observed Seattle's first tunnel bank burglary with grudging admiration. The hole was blasted in the exact location to miss heavy steel reinforcing bars. They assumed the thief used a magnetic locator.

An 18-foot tunnel, carefully shored with timbers, led to crawl space under the bank. It looked like the work of several energetic diggers.

While an intensive investigation was in progress Van Steenberg, 25, made a down payment on a used station wagon with $1,000 in bills.

Authorities have not commented.

Lawrence Says

JFK Faces Old Pros When He Goes to Europe

He's Inexperienced, Should Use Others, Columnist Claims

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — It is opportune to put into perspective President Kennedy's venture into personal diplomacy. His talks in Washington with Prime Minister Macmillan and Chancellor Adenauer and the later visit which Mr. Kennedy plans to make for conferences with President de Gaulle in Paris are the direct result of the American presidential election — a change in personnel here and maybe in international policy.

Lawrence

Mr. Macmillan is an old hand — an experienced diplomat — and Mr. De Gaulle and Mr. Adenauer have a long-time background in international controversies. The big question is how these experienced diplomats will bargain and trade in the next few months with the relatively inexperienced president of the United States.

Personal Negotiations

For Mr. Kennedy has let it be known that he himself is going to handle negotiations on the problems. He has some able advisers who have been in government for some time, but not one has the intimate knowledge of the American government's long and at times difficult negotiations with our allies that President Eisenhower and the members of the National Security Council obtained in the last eight years.

Diplomacy is, of course, often a matter of trades and reciprocal concessions. The British, for instance, know that the Red China problem is acutely controversial in the United States. It isn't in Britain, and the Macmillan government can take any position it pleases on that question, advancing or retreating, but the United States cannot. So the British diplomats will argue for something they are anxious to get from America and trade it off for a willingness to let the Red China problem ride for a while.

Who Wants What?

What do the British really want? What do the French want? What do the Germans want? Obviously, they want issues settled in a way that will benefit them on the economic side. The key to many a problem confronting the conservative government in Britain is increased export trade for British companies. In making a settlement in Southeast Asia, benefiting British trade and maintaining friendly relations with Red China — so as to preserve territorial possession of Hong Kong for Britain — are both more important than they appear to be on the surface. Participation in programs of financial aid to underdeveloped countries on a co-operative basis are looked upon in Europe as a desirable policy if they tend to increase the sale of European goods.

Inexperienced, Writer Says

Indeed, a close look at the diplomacy of our European allies today brings out the materialistic rather than the idealistic motivation. Thus, British spokesmen are ready to forget the 157,000 casualties suffered by the American people in the Korean war and are prepared to brush aside the ideals proclaimed by the United Nations when, by formal resolution, it pronounced Red China an "aggressor." To ignore the past is what is called "practical" and "realistic" policy. It goes along with some so-called "liberals" in the United States, who say that Red China must be recognized as a "fact." But so is the aggression by Red China in Korea a "fact," and so is the tyranny imposed today by the communists on the Chinese people. Is America's anti-colonial zeal to be confined to Portuguese Angola and the Congo?

Draw Headlines?

But the pressure for top-level meetings is hard to resist. Undoubtedly Mr. Kennedy will draw the big crowds in Paris and perhaps even bigger ones in England if he goes there. Maybe he will meet with Nikita Khrushchev later on, too. All this furnishes headlines, but it doesn't accomplish what "classical diplomacy," as it has been called, can achieve. For in the intimate give-and-take at the ambassadorial level there can be some blunt speaking, and a spade can be called a spade.

President Kennedy will succumb to these new doctrines called "liberal," or whether he will stand up for American idealism when he is confronted by European statesmen. He is inexperienced in the wiles of diplomacy, though, being something of a politician himself, he may not be as naive as the Europeans think he is.

The sad truth is that Mr. Kennedy has to go to school to get all the background of what has happened in the last eight years.

He has to learn by actual contact with the European diplomats just what kind of game they play. All the briefings he receives by the few men in the administration who have had some diplomatic experience in behalf of the United States in governmental posts from time to time will not give him a knowledge of the nuances of the many delicate problems he faces in these "summit" conferences. He would have been better advised to avoid the spectacular meetings at the top for a while and to have communicated through ambassadors for several months until he acquired an intimate background.

Draw Headlines?

But the pressure for top-level meetings is hard to resist. Undoubtedly Mr. Kennedy will draw the big crowds in Paris and perhaps even bigger ones in England if he goes there. Maybe he will meet with Nikita Khrushchev later on, too. All this furnishes headlines, but it doesn't accomplish what "classical diplomacy," as it has been called, can achieve. For in the intimate give-and-take at the ambassadorial level there can be some blunt speaking, and a spade can be called a spade.

It's unfortunate the United States had to have an election at this particular time in the midst of the "cold war." But, since a change of government was voted, it's regrettable that the top staff of American officials who helped develop policies for eight years, and who knew intimately from all foreign officials the background of international affairs, are not in some way utilized in an advisory capacity to help the people of the United States. For in international affairs there isn't supposed to be any party politics.

Badger Co-op Breaks Record In Services

Shawano Firm's Bull Valued at $334,533; Milk Production Up

SHAWANO — Badger Breeders has been in the artificial insemination business since 1940. Last year, breaking records, it recorded a total of 382,042 services among the herds of 27,746 members. Its area extends from Northeastern Wisconsin to Chippewa, Rusk, Price and Ashland Counties.

Badger's bull stud currently is valued at $334,533. There are 62 bulls in the barn at Shawano.

Records indicate members are cashing in on the Badger blood lines.

Savings Reported

"An increasing number are reaching the level of 14,000 to 16,000 pounds of milk or more than 500 pounds of fat per cow," Kenneth Wallin, general manager of the co-op, said. "Many others experience economical production at levels approaching this degree of efficiency."

"In many other cases the power of good feeding and management is necessary to give our improved genetics an opportunity to express itself."

Al Piehl, Badger's treasurer, called attention to the financial statement listing assets of $1,288,661.47. Savings of $144,965 were reported for the year.

Elects Directors

Badger Breeders elects its full slate of 30 directors each year. Eight new men were elected this year. Raymond Born was named to succeed Bernis in Sheboygan County, while Francis Zeller Jr., Oshkosh, took the place of Charles Foote, another deceased member, for Winnebago County.

Others new on the board are Hillard Brantmeier, Calumet County; Harry Wilson, Door; Donald G. Sprain, Marquette; Kermit Quimell, Rusk; Louis Kasparek, Taylor, and Norman E. Bymers, Marshfield.

Nine directors were named to the executive committee including Laurel Behnke, Clintonville, vice president, and Leonard A. Peck, Chippewa Falls, secretary. Piehl was retained as treasurer, a full time salaried position. Donald Franckowiak, Stratford, was elected president.

Rounding out the executive committee are Albert Allen, Green Bay; Wayne Jefferson, Friendship; Lee A. Clark, Laona; Howard Olson, Porterfield; Frank Jasurda, Phillips, and Robert Muck, Shawano.

Discuss Taxes

No Changes Expected In Co-op Regulations

CHILTON — No major changes in laws regulating cooperatives are anticipated during the coming year, college of agriculture professor, Marvin Schaars, told an audience of 75 Calumet County residents affiliated with cooperatives during a Co-op Clinic. Schaars' remark pertained to both federal and state legislation. The effect of tax laws on cooperatives was discussed. Cooperatives pay no taxes on net earnings since they claim no profits.

16 Farmers Complete SCS Plans

Sixteen farmers have completed soil conservation plans on their farms. The work, done by Soil Conservation Service engineers, was completed in 1960.

With the plan, a farmer knows the types of practices he must apply on his land to improve his crops and drainage.

Farmers include:

Stanley Zipmer, Bernard Mares & Son, Martin Dempsey, Gordon Stilen and Donald Kempf, Town of Deer Creek; Reinhold Mueller, Leonard Maufort and Merle Buntser, Town of Cicero; Willis Andrews, Ralph Gehring and Ervin Conradt, Town of Bovina; Wesley Poole, Maine; Eldor Gruetzmaker and LeRoy Vanasten, Hortonia; Clifford Mueller, Ralph Kneisler and Oscar Kneisler, Seymour; Norbert Van Hoof, Norbert Van Zeeland, Ben Verhagen and Alois Van Vreede, Kaukauna; James Garvey, Irvin Gofford and Robert Garvey, Oneida; John Wisniski and Norbert Schroeder, Freedom; Gerhard Machtwey and John Kluge, Black Creek; Clarence Steffen and Earl Jentz, Center; George Kroes, Vandenbroek, and Warren Garske, Maple Creek.

Pay Taxes

Cooperatives pay taxes on real estate, personal property and inventory as any other business would.

Truman Torgerson, manager of Lake to Lake Cooperatives, advised co-op managers and presidents not to take too active a hand in establishing policy and instead leave such matters to the board of directors. "A director, on the other hand, outside of a board meeting has no more authority than any stockholder," Torgerson said. He encouraged the study of co-op articles of incorporation and bylaws by its respective members.

A third speaker on the program, Kenneth Wallin, Shawano, Badger Breeders head, said purchasing cooperatives handled 15 per cent of the commodities purchased in the nation last year. In addition they marketed 26 per cent of the nation's commodities and handled 45 per cent of product service.

Grain Program Directly Affects Farmer Selling Feed; Others Gain

Whether or not great numbers of Wisconsin farmers participate in the new administration's feed grain program is an open question at this point. But one that will be decided in the next few weeks.

The program, which directly affects corn and grain sorghum production, is primarily of concern to the farmer who sells feed grain. Only 21 per cent of Wisconsin corn production was sold off the farm in 1959.

on many farms the labor available will not be fully used with fewer acres in corn.

Thus it might be to the advantage of a farmer who feeds out most of his corn to sell his corn to the government under the support price and buy corn on the market at what will undoubtedly be a lower price.

The feed grain program will have little effect on the cost side of Wisconsin farmers' operations this year. If the program is effective in decreasing production of feed grains, its long range effect will be to increase feed prices above what they would otherwise be.

The program will have little effect on livestock numbers this year, and the income from the livestock enterprise will not be changed much.

Income from the corn acreage can be increased by taking part in this program.

The farmer who cooperates has no big incentive to step up production on his remaining acres, because the support applies to only his average per acre production. Cooperators will still want to do the best job of producing corn on their given acreage to keep the cost of production per bushel low.

Election of Officers

NEW LONDON — There was an election of officers of the newly organized Oak Grove 4-H Club at Mukwua Town Hall. Lee Shaw was elected president, Charles Stern Vice-president, Rosemary Shaw Secretary - treasurer and Joyce Kent club reporter.

There are 21 members in the club. Meetings will be on the second Tuesday of each month.

The farmer who doesn't normally sell his corn should look closely at the program because he may very well have something to gain by participating.

Here's basically how the program works. A farmer diverts at least 20 per cent of his 1959-60 corn acreage to soil conserving uses.

Those who join the voluntary program are eligible for price support on corn. The corn support price nationwide has been pegged at $1.20 a bushel and that is on the average 14 cents more than in 1960. A farmer who does not participate in the program cannot get a support loan on his corn nor can he get a support loan on barley, oats or rye.

Also he cannot get a support loan on more than his average per acre corn production.

Lower Price

Farmers will be paid by the government for the acres diverted to a conservation use — the payment determined by formula. The payments will be negotiable certificates for which producers may receive grain or a cash equivalent of grain.

The market price for corn this year will be below the support price of $1.20. The federal government can affect this price under the program, because it will be selling corn from government stocks.

Whether or not a farmer should participate will depend upon a close study of his own situation.

Let's assume that a farmer last year planted 50 acres of corn and produced 100 bushels to the acre. His total yield was 5,000 bushels. Under the program he would plant 40 acres of corn and at 100 bushels would raise 4,000 bushels.

If this farmer elected not to participate and raised 5,000 bushels, his return this year from corn would be $5,250 at a price of $1.05 a bushel. Under the program his 4,000 bushels of corn would bring him $4,800 at the support price of $1.20. But he would also get $600 in payments from the diverted acres for a total of $5,400 from the operation. And his costs of growing corn would be less because he does not have the production costs on those 10 diverted acres. On the other side is the possibility that

Trees Ordered From Waupaca Forester

Delivery Dates for County Planting Range From Middle to End of April

WAUPACA — About 1,100,000 trees have been ordered from Dale Tubbs, county forester, for spring planting in Waupaca county.

Delivery dates for the small trees is scheduled April 19 and 21 at Waupaca, April 26 at Weyauwega and New London, and April 28 at Clintonville, Marion and Iola.

The trees are mostly Norway and White Pine although there also are orders for spruce, white spruce, white cedar and Jack pine.

The trees have been ordered from state nurseries. The normal planting season starts about April 15, Tubbs said.

The all-time high planting season was 1959 when 1,415,000 trees were ordered from state nurseries.

The planting program on a county-wide basis is about 85 per cent successful with an average loss of about 15 per cent, he said. The type of season, coupled with other soil factors, can have a direct bearing on an individual's planting.

A survey taken in 1951 indicated that trees in Waupaca County were being cut twice as fast as they were growing.

The forest management division of the Wisconsin Conservation Department recently announced that trees may now be ordered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices without paying for the trees.

Any landowner may order up to 25,000 seedlings for spring planting under a new purchase order system that has been developed by the ASC state office. A minimum of 5,000 trees must be ordered to take advantage of this new program.

Under the new procedure, the ASC office advances payment of the trees to the nursery and then credits the landowner when he completes the planting.

A bowling party was scheduled this week.

2,000 Entering District Events

14 Music, Drama Festivals Planned During April

Nearly 2,000 Wisconsin 4-H Club members will participate in district music and folk dance festivals during April.

The 14 festivals, sponsored by the University of Wisconsin Extension music department, feature instrumental, vocal, novelty and dance ensembles.

The best groups will be invited to perform during State 4-H Club Week on the UW campus in June. William Johnston and Edward Høgdahl of the UW Extension music staff will judge the district entries.

The annual countrywide and district festivals encourage 4-H Club members to work together through musical ensembles and folk dance routines.

Music Survey

An Extension music survey shows that last year nearly 11,000 Wisconsin 4-H'ers participated in more than 1,100 ensembles in 66 county festivals, and 64 counties entered district events where more than 1,900 4-H Club members performed in 186 ensembles.

Marathon, Shawano, Langlade, Wood, Portage and Waupaca counties will hold their festival at the Marathon Park Youth Building, Wausau at 7:30 p.m. today. Vernon L. Pellett, Marathon County 4-H Club agent, is festival chairman.

Marquette, Oconto, Brown, Door, Kewaunee, Outagamie and Manitowish counties will hold their festival at Preble High School, Green Bay, at 7:30 p.m. April 18. June Billings, Brown county home agent, is festival chairman.

Calumet, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Dodge, Washington, Winnebago and Ozaukee counties' festival will be at Mayville High School at 7:30 p.m. April 19. Arthur Brehm, Dodge county 4-H Club agent, is chairman.

Calumet Farmers Favor DHIA Sale

Auction Planned for 1962 When More Cattle May be Available

CHILTON — Calumet County six members were opposed to members of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association overwhelmingly favor a DHIA sale as an outlet for surplus dairy cattle, a recent survey shows.

Of the 176 county DHIA members who responded to the survey, conducted by Gerald Loefer, and Gene and Ronald Redig, fieldmen, 158 said they thought a DHIA sale was a fine idea. Only Plans for a sale during 1961 were killed by consignment difficulties. Farmers answering the questionnaire indicated they would consign a total of 88 bred heifers.

Cattle Needed
 A successful sale should have a minimum of 200 consignments, DHIA directors said. Rather than begin planning a sale for the current year, which would have a slim chance for success, the directors set a goal of putting on a DHIA sale in August, 1962.

The survey showed 44 dairy-men were in need of cattle and indicated they were potential buyers at a DHIA sale. Thirty-three said they might buy, 20 didn't know and 81 said they were not in need of additional cattle at the present time.

FFA Members Vying for Spot On Judging Team

AMHERST — Five senior agriculture students at Amherst High School are working to make a four-man soil judging team to compete in a national contest April 27 and 28.

The Amherst FFA chapter earned the right to compete in the national contest by placing second in state competition at Farm Progress Days, Marshfield, last summer. Top four teams from each state and several foreign teams compete in the national.

Vying for the team are Robert Lea, Donald Stuczynski, Leonard Ostrowski, Norbert Stuczynski and Jerry Lucht. Lea is expected to be one member of the team because he had the highest individual score in judging in county and state competition.

The national contest is in Oklahoma. The chapter now is looking for contributions and ways of obtaining funds to finance the trip.

Bonduel, Reedsville

Lamb Pool Dates Set At Two Sales Barns

Lamb pool dates for two sales barns serving northeastern Wisconsin farmers have been announced.

Dates at Reedsville stockyards will be June 27, July 18, Aug. 29, Sept. 19, Oct. 17 and Nov. 21 this year.

Lambs and sheep will be received between 8 a.m. and noon on lamb pool days and will be sold at auction.

Ram day will be at Bonduel Aug. 30. The shepherds clinic will be at Green Bay Jan. 18, 1962.

A sheep management school on lamb grading and parasite control is planned at Reedsville stockyards at 8 p.m. May 3.

Dates of Bonduel pools will be June 8, June 28, July 19, Aug. 9, Sept. 20, Oct. 11, Nov. 1, Dec. 13, Jan. 24 and the lamb grading and parasite control conference May 2.

In 1960 Bonduel handled 2,467 sheep and Reedsville 451. The '60 figure at Bonduel was an increase of 868 over 1959. Reedsville dropped eight lambs from its 1959 total.

Better Grading

A steady improvement has been noted in the percentage of lambs grading out to choice or prime at the 10 pool sites in the state.

In 1954, the first year the lamb pool was opened at Ripon, 29 per cent of the lambs sold graded choice or prime. In 1955 Ripon and Lancaster were pool sites with 37 per cent grading in top brackets. Percentage of lambs grading choice or prime for all years is 1956, 59 per cent; 1957, 62 per cent; 1958, 70 per cent; 1959, 67 per cent, and 1960, 73 per cent. There was a decrease in 1960 because only Green Bay held a pool. The other nine did not participate.

Girl Wins First In Poster Contest

Linda Court won first place in the Woodland Hustlers 4-H Club safety slogan contest.

Other winners were Ellen Hillegas, second; Paul Jurgens, third, and Mary Vander Zanden, fourth. March was safety month and Sgt. George Else, Outagamie County police, showed two safety movies.

Next meeting will be April 11 with the health and safety committee in charge.

Older Rural Youth Have Bowling Party

Eighteen members of Outagamie County Older Rural Youth group had a bowling party at Freedom with high score prizes going to Allyn Staley and Marlene Zibell.

Low scorers included Robert Zibell and Judy Hendricks.

A smelt fishing party and a square dance are planned later in April.

Delegates sent to the state training school at Green Lake will be in charge of the April 27 meeting.

Co-op Reports 1960 Was Rough Year

Consolidated Badger Market Complicated By Cheese Prices

Nineteen-sixty was a good year,
but a rough one, for Consolidated
Badger Cooperative.The year was rough General Manager George Ruppel said, because of an erratic and highly competitive market complicated by unusually high cheese prices.
Badger isn't in the cheese business, and so wasn't able to cash in on the boom.Net sales increased, but earnings by the cooperative were down.Sales amounted to about $28.3 million, compared with $26.6 million in 1959. Earnings dropped, however, from $790,000 in 1959 to $516,892 last year.Consolidated Badger, which operates generally north and west of Green Bay, handled 531 million pounds of milk from some 2,600 farmers in 1960."Historically, the greatest net return over a long period for the dairy industry has been in fluid milk," Ruppel said. About 70 per cent of Badger's milk last year was sold under Chicago Market Order 41."Ice cream usually ranks right behind fluid milk for returns, with evaporated milk third, butter and powder fourth and cheese in fifth place.

"Last year, however, cheese moved ahead, and prices were good until late in the year. Then the price dropped 4½ cents in a single day," Badger's manager recalled.So maybe this year, with production climbing again, the cheese business won't be so good.

"If things look good for cheese in comparison with fluid milk, Badger will be able to go into cheese production in a very short time," he said.A good many independent cheese plant operators, facing tougher competition with lower prices, are trying to sell out, according to Ruppel. One of them approached Badger recently, and was turned down."He even offered to run the plant for Badger," Ruppel said.
"But we couldn't see how he could do a job for us after going broke by himself."
